Hurricane Grazes Maryland

Six Are Dead As Hazel Whips Through State

Martinsburg Woman Is Among Victims, Navy Trainer Hit

BALTIMORE, Oct. 15 (AP) — The year's most vicious hurricane carried its woes on north tonight after leaving at least six persons dead in Maryland and blacking out all of the Eastern Shore from the Virginia Capes to Southern Delaware.

As the 100-mile winds of Hurricane Hazel passed by and rescuers could take stock, reports of fatalities were received from the east to the west.

All nine Maryland counties on the Eastern Shore, two Counties in Virginia and parts of Delaware had no power from late afternoon on. At 10 p.m. tonight, the Eastern Shore Power Company was still trying to restore service.

Ex-Congressman's Son Dies

Hospitals carried on with lanterns and emergency light plants. More than 50 persons were evacuated from Kent Narrows near the great Chesapeake Bay bridge by rescuers carrying lanterns.

The son of a former Maryland congressman died in the debris of a Salisbury skating rink while he was trying to check damage. Howard Ward, 54, son of former Rep. David W. Ward, was crushed under a brick wall of the rink.

A 13-year-old Negro girl from the village of Stockton on the Shore died in Peninsula General Hospital from injuries suffered when a tree fell on her. Hospital officials could only identify her by her last name —Wise.

Mrs. Helen Irving, 44, of Martinsburg, W. Va., was swept away when water stalled the family car on Maryland 34 between Sharpsburg and Keedysville, south of Hagerstown, Md.

Robert Cohen, an 11-year-old Negro boy, was killed in northwest Baltimore by a falling tree.

An unidentified Negro caretaker at Highland Beach, six miles south of Annapolis, drowned when a boat capsized as he was trying to bring it back to shore after it had broken away.

State Police at Salisbury reported a man had been killed south of there by a falling tree. They did not have his name or the details immediately.

Stalled By Water

State Police reported the Irving car, driven by the victim's husband, was stalled by high water at the little community of Porterstown. Mrs. Irving got out and was swept away through an adjoining field.

The storm cut a wide path of destruction up through Maryland's Chesapeake Bay country as her center passed west of Washington and Baltimore.

The Weather Bureau here said her winds had diminished to 84 miles an hour as she moved west of Baltimore just before 7 p.m.

All power had been knocked out on the Eastern Shore of Maryland and in Southern Delaware by a failure at the Eastern Shore Public Service Co.'s Vienna power plant 18 miles northwest of Salisbury.

Lesser power failures were reported from all other corners of the state. Thousands of telephones went dead. Thousands of fallen trees blocked streets and highways.

Labor Leaders Make New Try For Big Merger

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (AP)—AFL and CIO leaders made a hopeful new try today at merging the nation's two big labor union groups.

Before they began their closed door meeting, the AFL and CIO chiefs read with evident amusement an article in John L. Lewis' union newspaper poking fun at the latest labor unity move.

Lewis, a key figure in the breakaway of a handful of unions from the AFL in 1935 to form the CIO, was not invited to today's gathering. His United Mine Workers union is affiliated with neither the AFL nor CIO.

The UMW's journal, in a bimonthly issue out today, published an editorial titled "That Smelly Old Peace Pipe Again." It said the AFL-CIO meeting was "the umpteenth pow-wow on the subject of labor unity."

Neither AFL president George Meany nor CIO president Walter Reuther would comment officially on Lewis' newspaper remarks, but AFL and CIO officials said privately they felt Lewis "is suffering from wounded pride" for not being in on the merger talks.

The AFL and CIO were each represented by a nine-man committee of their top leaders at the merger conference in a downtown hotel. They expressed optimism that an amalgamation could be agreed upon, even though numerous prior merger attempts had all failed.

Leaders said prospects were bright at this time to achieve the long debated merger because of success in negotiating a "no-raiding" agreement four months ago.

Under this pact, most AFL and CIO unions pledged not to try to take over union members already organized by a union in a rival federation.

Patrolman Kills Two Fugitives

CHAPPELL, Neb., Oct. 15 (AP)—Nebraska Safety Patrolman Mel Busekist today killed two fugitives with his riot gun as they fled across a field, firing at him as they ran.

The patrolman had halted their car after a seven-mile chase that started when he spotted a car wanted in connection with a $200 holdup at North Platte, Neb., last night.

Busekist and other officers identified the two men as Alan Billings, 21, Blair, Neb., and Charles Dewey Evans, 25, Omaha. He said identification was made from drivers' licenses. Billings was killed outright and Evans died in a hospital.

Busekist said he sighted the car about 4 miles east of Chappell, which is in extreme western Nebraska, and gave chase. One shot was fired at him from the fleeing car. At a junction the fugitives' car halted and two men jumped out. Busekist said they started to run across the field on foot. One of them, who was later identified as Billings, shot at him twice with a revolver. He leveled his riot gun as he stood beside his patrol car and dropped first Evans, then Billings.

Roberts Freed On Bail Pending His Arraignment

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 15 (AP)—James T. Roberts, Baltimore attorney accused of murder in connection with the kidnap-slaying of his daughter, Judith Ann, 7, was ordered freed on $10,000 bond today by Circuit Judge Pat Cannon.

The judge declined to quash the indictment under which Roberts was jailed however, and offered to try the case beginning tomorrow if Roberts desired.

George Brautigam, state attorney, said Roberts has not yet been arraigned on the murder charge and offered to arraign him immediately.

Roberts' attorney, Saul T. von Zamft, said he was not ready for the arraignment and trial.

Judith Ann was kidnaped from the home of her grandfather, Harry Rosenberg, the night of July 7. Her body was found several hours later beside Biscayne Bay. A doctor testified she died of suffocation and her body had been violated.

Judge Cannon said the proof and presumption were not great enough to hold Roberts in jail to await trial, but pointed out his ruling was not on the father's guilt or innocence.

"The court feels that Roberts is entitled to bond," he added.

His ruling came after detective Charles Sapp testified that fingerprints found on Rosenberg's car, abandoned near where the body was found, were not those of Roberts or any member of the immediate family.

Mrs. Dorothy Lawrence, attractive 25-year-old client of Roberts, said she accompanied him on a tour of night clubs and bars the night Judith Ann was slain, and declared Roberts was out of her sight no longer than 15 minutes while she went to the rest room.

Food Is Endangered As Efforts To End Port Walkout Fail

British Parliament Faces Crisis

LONDON, Oct. 15 (AP)—Efforts to settle the strike of 24,000 dockers which has shut down London's busy port collapsed tonight and the government warned that Britain's food supplies and export trade were endangered.

Coupled with a spreading busmen's walkout and an order for a mass strike by Thames River tugmen, the dock stoppage confronted Prime Minister Churchill's government with the most serious labor crisis since it came to power three years ago.

Has Serious Effect

"The stoppage in the London docks is having a serious effect on the country's export trade, is endangering food supplies and threatens to cause unemployment in other industries," the Ministry of Labor said in a statement after an emergency Cabinet meeting and urgent efforts by the government to negotiate a back-to-work agreement.

The ministry said "no progress can be made by negotiation at this stage."

A ministry of Labor spokesman said 500 tons of bacon were deteriorating at the wharves and estimated 250,000 pounds ($700,000) worth of food already had rotted.

Richard Barrett, general secretary of the National Amalgamated Stevedores and Dockers emerged from a conference with Labor Minister Sir Walter Monckton and said he had turned down proposals to call off the strike.

Tugmen Plan Walkout

Simultaneously, 4,500 members of the Watermen, Lightmen, Tugmen and Bargemen's Union were instructed by their executive to walk out Sunday morning, halting the movement along the Thames of London's coal, gasoline and garbage.

The bus strike stripped London streets of half its rumbling double-decker buses and threw traffic into chaos.

Barrett told newsmen Monckton had proposed the dockers should revert to the pre-strike position of Oct. 4 and suggested setting up a court of inquiry into the dispute.

The union executive council "will not recommend any resumption (of work) until the employers agree that overtime will be voluntary instead of compulsory," he said. The NASD has been banning overtime work in support of this claim.

Stevenson Attacks Defense Office Use

ALBUQUERQUE, Oct. 15 (AP) — Adlai Stevenson tonight criticized Republican campaign use of the office of secretary of defense and declared past Democratic administrations never had so employed the office.

"It is quite clear," said the 1952 Democratic presidential nominee, that neither President Eisenhower nor Charles E. Wilson "seem the least bit sensitive about the property of the secretary of defense participating in a political campaign."

Navy Planes Run Into Texas Norther

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., Oct. 15 (AP)—Seven Navy seaplanes flew here from Norfolk, Va., to escape Hurricane Hazel this morning and ran into a Texas norther that stranded them in the rough waters of Corpus Christi Bay off the naval air station.

A Navy helicopter lowered a late breakfast to the 77 men on the planes late this morning.

Radford Claims U. S. Air Power Second To None

CHICAGO, Oct. 15 (AP) — Adm. Arthur Radford said tonight that American air power is second to none and "we can make the unequivocable promise of fearsome retaliation" to aggression.

But the chairman of the strategy-making Joint Chiefs of Staff emphasized that plans are not pinned to retaliation alone, saying that when the nation's military forces are built to desired strength they must be maintained in readiness, he added:

"Then if confronted by hostile aggression we will take what initiative we can, countering the aggressor wherever necessary, by whatever military means would most effectively accomplish the job. What we want is flexible military strategy. We would not let the enemy choose only those battle conditions for which he is particularly well suited."

Radford set forth his views in address prepared for delivery to the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce.

The admiral said that until the first round-world flight was made 30 years ago "isolationism behind protective ocean barriers seemed both wise and prudent to most Americans."

But now science has produced weapons "which can easily span the oceans and the arctic."

Of Russian air power, Radford said:

"In the past the Soviets lagged in the development of their aircraft, particularly late model, long range bombers.

"Unfortunately, our latest reports indicated this is no longer the case. Soviet scientific, technological and production skills definitely have increased."

He said it is difficult to compare American air power with that of Russia, because there is no certain information on what the Soviets have.

"If, however, we combine the known facts with our best estimates, it leads me to conclude that our national air power is currently second to none," Radford said.

B25 Crash Kills Three Persons

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Oct. 15 (AP)—A B25 bomber from Offutt Air Force Base, Omaha, crashed on a farm four miles north of Nebraska City today, killing three persons.

A Strategic Air Command spokesman at Offutt said the twin-engine World War II light bomber was on a routine training flight. It carried a crew of three.

He said an accident investigating team was sent to Nebraska City to determine the extent of crew injuries, but persons at the scene reported seeing three bodies in the wreckage.

Arthur Sweet, Nebraska City newspaper editor, who reached the crash scene shortly after the crash was reported, said the plane did not burn, but he "could see three bodies." He said the plane was "pretty well ground up."

Smog Hangs Over Los Angeles For 9th Straight Day

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 15 (AP)—As an eye-stinging smog blanket hung like a gray-blue shroud over this city of sunshine for the ninth straight day today an aroused citizenry cried for action and politicians were quick to heed.

Latest developments in the war on Southern California's perennial plague:

1. Gov. Goodwin Knight cancelled all engagements and flew here "to determine why the air pollution laws of this state are not being enforced."

2. A 10-year-old Alhambra girl died, apparently from mucous asphyxiation, and her physician said smog could be a contributing factor.

3. Physicians reported an increase in colds and sore throats since the season's worst smog spell began.

4. State Highway patrolmen set up 61 roadblocks and ticketed cars and trucks whose exhausts were smoking excessively.

Ike Opens Bid For Farm Votes At Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 15 (AP) — President Eisenhower said tonight his administration has gone far toward building a "foundation of enduring prosperity" for American agriculture, and he asked for a Republican Congress to help him carry out his policies.

The President made an open bid for farm votes in the congressional elections in a speech prepared for a meeting at Butler Field House sponsored by the National Institute of Animal Agriculture.

Eisenhower jabbed at the Truman administration, saying that in its last two years in office "our farmers suffered a serious loss in buying power." And he said his own admiiistration has taken "bold, progressive steps' to aid the farmer.

The Denver White House had described the address in advance as "nonpartisan" but the Republican National Committee bought broadcast time for it.

And Eisenhower, winding up his 20-minute prepared speech, brought in a plea for a GOP Congress. He said:

"Opportunity is ours if we continue to reject policies that lead to ever higher taxes, to regimentation, to dependence on a government far from our homes.

"Opportunity will be ours if we keep a government of teamwork—a government not of partisan rivalries, but of harmony and good will—a government whose President and Congress, joined together by the Republican philosophy, will continue their advance along the course charted 21 months ago."

For the most part, the speech was devoted to farm problems. But Eisenhower said at the outset that "I do not mean to imply that our farmers' interests are limited to farming. Far from it! Nor is prosperous agriculture of interest to the farmer alone. The welfare of 163 million Americans is bound up with our nation's agriculture—just as every farmer is affected by all national and world affairs."

Storm's Fury Smashes Into N. Y., Penna.

Disaster Crews Alert After Blow Strikes Carolinas, Virginia

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—Hurricane Hazel, one of the most dangerously erratic storms of the century, grazed Washington with unsurpassed fury tonight and smashed into the Northeastern states.

At least nine persons died when the hurricane swept into the Carolinas from the sea and battered its way northward. Thousands were homeless, as it moved along with express train speed.

There were signs that the storm —third hurricane to hit the populous Northeast in six weeks—was expending its strength. But it was dying by almost imperceptible degrees and, in its death throes, it was menacingly wicked.

Ships Change Course

Ashore and at sea millions cringed before its awesome might.

Ships frantically changed course. Airplanes fled like game birds before a forest fire. Men pitted their puny strength in a frantic battle to blunt its destructiveness.

None of the nation's big seaboard cities was directly in its path. But it staggered them with majestic insolence, its whining winds and curtains of rain marching escort for 300 miles around its center.

Weathermen called it "One of the most erratic hurricanes in history."

It flanked New York to the west by about 80 to 100 miles—the first time this century that an October hurricane cut behind the city.

The storm's center hit central Pennsylvania headon.

Storm 10 Days Old

The 10-day-old storm, eighth hurricane of the season, already had wrought death and destruction along a twisting path from its Caribbean spawning area far at sea.

Behind it lay the stricken island of Haiti, where the storm struck Tuesday, razing whole towns and leaving a death toll estimated about 100.

Behind it also lay the battered, debris choked Carolina coast where the hurricane early today veered from sea with great force into the continental U. S. At least five persons were killed in the Carolinas and Virginia, two in Delaware, and two in Pennsylvania.

Civil Defense forces, volunteer aides, policemen and firemen stood alert through a night frought with the storm's omens of disaster.

New York City was swept by gusts of "more than 100 miles an hour shortly before 8 p.m.

Earlier, as the storm swept past Washington and Baltimore, Washington National Airport registered wind gusts of 98 miles per hour, an intensity never before matched in the nation's capital. Windows were smashed, precious old trees ripped from the Capitol grounds.

Games Are Cancelled

In New York, all outdoor activity—football games, harness racing and the like—was cancelled.

The fire department sounded its "six sixes" — a bell signal placing every fireman in the city on 24-hour disaster alert.

The eight million residents of the city were urged to stay off the streets.

Can't Lose

No Place On Ballot For Yes Or No In German Election

BERLIN, Oct. 15 (AP)—The spectacle of a national election in which no candidate can lose engaged the Soviet zone of Germany today.

A single list of candidates picked by the Communists and their collaborators will be placed before 12 million eligible voters on Sunday to approve as their Volkskammer —Parliament.

There is no place on the ballot to indicate yes or no. A citizen simply takes his ballot and drops it in a box and that is a vote for the entire Parliament.

There is no way to vote no, and no way to deface the ballot without the probability of sudden arrest.

The East German government calls this a "democratic" election. Communist leaders say it qualifies as such because the candidates represent the ruling Socialist Unity (Sed Communist) party, the Christian Democrats, the National Democrats, the Liberal Democrats, the Farmers party, the Communist Youth, the Women's League and the trade unions. There are also six candidates listed as having no party at all.

The only campaigning being done today was organizational work by the Communist machine to get out the vote. Every city block and every village has a "leader"—just as the Nazis did it—who is responsible for the actions of a certain number of people.

The most vigorous appeal to the electorate was made not by a German, but by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov. During his eight-day visit to East Germany which ended last Wednesday he called on children in kindergartens, donned a miner's helmet in uranium shafts, and generally behaved like a politician on tour.

Eastern sources said Molotov's unusual visit had considerable effect on the East German population and bolstered Communist Premier Otto Grotewohl's regime evidence of the senior Soviet diplomat's open support.

The Administration Reports

Budget Chief Gives Examples Of Savings Made By Efficiency

This is another in a series of articles by top executives in the Eisenhower administration offered by the New York Herald Tribune syndicate to some 1,600 daily newspapers throughout the country as a public service. The articles are designed as mid-term reports to the American people on the administration's accomplishments and plans.

By ROWLAND HUGHES
Budget Bureau Director

For almost two years President Eisenhower has been the moving force behind a resolute effort to give the American people a more effective Federal government at the least possible cost. Able support in this undertaking has come from all of his department and agency heads. The whole spirit and atmosphere of the huge machine of government has markedly improved as people of proved experience and ability in management, whom the President has brought in to head up the departments and agencies, have really taken hold of their jobs.

It is common knowledge that the President has sought administrative competence in each person chosen for a top government post. But what this administration has actually done to improve the functioning of government and reduce operating costs is less well known. The results it has achieved by steadfast attention to operating efficiency throughout the government are of interest to every American. They have meant reduced taxes and more money in his pocketbook.

Organization Clarified

I cannot possibly tell you here all that has been done, but I can describe the approach that has been taken and give you some concrete examples of results.

Even before the new administration took office in January, 1953, the President appointed a Committee on Government Organization to make studies and recommend improvements in government operation. That committee co-operated with each designated department and agency head in identifying the principal organization and management problems of the agency for which he would be responsible. Thanks to this head start, the top officials were able, from the day they took office, to work toward increased efficiency and economy.

Since Inauguration Day, systematic and continuing appraisals of organization and operations have been made upon the initiative of agency heads, frequently with the assistance of management consultant firms or outstanding individuals from private life. Also, twelve reorganization plans covering various fields of government were proposed and are now in effect. The net result of this emphasis on improved management and organization throughout the government has been more effective policy control by agency heads, reduction of long-standing backlogs of work, elimination of functions no longer necessary, and substantial savings in operating costs.

New Test On Spending

Unremitting pressure to reduce expenditures — by elimination of duplicatory programs, by better management and more efficient operations, and by using essentiality rather than desirability as a test of government expenditures—cut the spending level in the last fiscal year approximately $10 billion below the level recommended for that year by the past adminis-

Man Conquers Sea

Lone American Aboard Raft Ends 115-Day Ocean Voyage

PAGO PAGO, American Samoa, Oct. 15 (AP)—William Willis — one man against the sea — reached his goal of Samoa today after 115 days on a 35-foot raft during which his water and stove gave out and he lived on raw fish.

The 61-year-old New Yorker, weathered by the long battle against the elements on a drifting voyage from Peru, was healthy and leaped briskly to the dock when his raft was towed in early today.

To 500 cheering Samoans and Americans who met him at the dock, the mariner declared:

"The trip at sea was fantastic and it was also a nightmare and yet it was just a dream which changed from day to day.

"I have had some pleasant and unpleasant experiences. I had to live on sea water, for two months ago my water cans rusted out and when I checked them there was no water and my stove also went bad."

And so he lived on raw fish—mainly dolphins which he said were easy to catch—and the survival rations which he had brought along.

(Presumably, Willis carried some water purifying equipment although this point was not cleared up in Pago Pago dispatches.)

Willis had seen no human being until the ship Manuatele, which had put out to look for him Wednesday, came alongside yesterday 30 miles northeast of Pago Pago.

He said he sighted land but once all across the Pacific — Flint Island some 1,300 miles east of American Samoa.

Willis said he had fought heavy seas, which sometimes washed over his little raft, but had encountered only one squall. He praised the sea worthiness of his raft. He had designed the light balsa wood craft himself.

"The stoppage in the London docks is having a serious effect on the country's export trade, is endangering food supplies and threatens to cause unemployment in other industries," the Ministry of Labor said in a statement after an emergency Cabinet meeting and urgent efforts by the government to negotiate a back-to-work agreement.

The ministry said "no progress can be made by negotiation at this stage."

A ministry of Labor spokesman said 500 tons of bacon were deteriorating at the wharves and estimated 250,000 pounds ($700,000) worth of food already had rotted.

Richard Barrett, general secretary of the National Amalgamated Stevedores and Dockers emerged from a conference with Labor Minister Sir Walter Monckton and said he had turned down proposals to call off the strike.

Tugmen Plan Walkout

Simultaneously, 4,500 members of the Watermen, Lightmen, Tugmen and Bargemen's Union were instructed by their executive to walk out Sunday morning, halting the movement along the Thames of London's coal, gasoline and garbage.

The bus strike stripped London streets of half its rumbling double-decker buses and threw traffic into chaos.

Barrett told newsmen Monckton had proposed the dockers should revert to the pre-strike position of Oct. 4 and suggested setting up a court of inquiry into the dispute.

The union executive council "will not recommend any resumption (of work) until the employers agree that overtime will be voluntary instead of compulsory," he said. The NASD has been banning overtime work in support of this claim.

Stevenson Attacks Defense Office Use

ALBUQUERQUE, Oct. 15 (AP) — Adlai Stevenson tonight criticized Republican campaign use of the office of secretary of defense and declared past Democratic administrations never had so employed the office.

"It is quite clear," said the 1952 Democratic presidential nominee, that neither President Eisenhower nor Charles E. Wilson "seem the least bit sensitive about the property of the secretary of defense participating in a political campaign."

Navy Planes Run Into Texas Norther

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., Oct. 15 (AP)—Seven Navy seaplanes flew here from Norfolk, Va., to escape Hurricane Hazel this morning and ran into a Texas norther that stranded them in the rough waters of Corpus Christi Bay off the naval air station.

A Navy helicopter lowered a late breakfast to the 77 men on the planes late this morning.

Radford Claims U. S. Air Power Second To None

CHICAGO, Oct. 15 (AP) — Adm. Arthur Radford said tonight that American air power is second to none and "we can make the unequivocable promise of fearsome retaliation" to aggression.

But the chairman of the strategy-making Joint Chiefs of Staff emphasized that plans are not pinned to retaliation alone, saying that when the nation's military forces are built to desired strength they must be maintained in readiness, he added:

"Then if confronted by hostile aggression we will take what initiative we can, countering the aggressor wherever necessary, by whatever military means would most effectively accomplish the job. What we want is flexible military strategy. We would not let the enemy choose only those battle conditions for which he is particularly well suited."

Radford set forth his views in address prepared for delivery to the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce.

The admiral said that until the first round-world flight was made 30 years ago "isolationism behind protective ocean barriers seemed both wise and prudent to most Americans."

But now science has produced weapons "which can easily span the oceans and the arctic."

Of Russian air power, Radford said:

"In the past the Soviets lagged in the development of their aircraft, particularly late model, long range bombers.

"Unfortunately, our latest reports indicated this is no longer the case. Soviet scientific, technological and production skills definitely have increased."

He said it is difficult to compare American air power with that of Russia, because there is no certain information on what the Soviets have.

"If, however, we combine the known facts with our best estimates, it leads me to conclude that our national air power is currently second to none," Radford said.

B25 Crash Kills Three Persons

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Oct. 15 (AP)—A B25 bomber from Offutt Air Force Base, Omaha, crashed on a farm four miles north of Nebraska City today, killing three persons.

A Strategic Air Command spokesman at Offutt said the twin-engine World War II light bomber was on a routine training flight. It carried a crew of three.

He said an accident investigating team was sent to Nebraska City to determine the extent of crew injuries, but persons at the scene reported seeing three bodies in the wreckage.

Arthur Sweet, Nebraska City newspaper editor, who reached the crash scene shortly after the crash was reported, said the plane did not burn, but he "could see three bodies." He said the plane was "pretty well ground up."

Smog Hangs Over Los Angeles For 9th Straight Day

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 15 (AP)—As an eye-stinging smog blanket hung like a gray-blue shroud over this city of sunshine for the ninth straight day today an aroused citizenry cried for action and politicians were quick to heed.

Latest developments in the war on Southern California's perennial plague:

1. Gov. Goodwin Knight cancelled all engagements and flew here "to determine why the air pollution laws of this state are not being enforced."

2. A 10-year-old Alhambra girl died, apparently from mucous asphyxiation, and her physician said smog could be a contributing factor.

3. Physicians reported an increase in colds and sore throats since the season's worst smog spell began.

4. State Highway patrolmen set up 61 roadblocks and ticketed cars and trucks whose exhausts were smoking excessively.

Ike Opens Bid For Farm Votes At Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 15 (AP) — President Eisenhower said tonight his administration has gone far toward building a "foundation of enduring prosperity" for American agriculture, and he asked for a Republican Congress to help him carry out his policies.

The President made an open bid for farm votes in the congressional elections in a speech prepared for a meeting at Butler Field House sponsored by the National Institute of Animal Agriculture.

Eisenhower jabbed at the Truman administration, saying that in its last two years in office "our farmers suffered a serious loss in buying power." And he said his own admiiistration has taken "bold, progressive steps' to aid the farmer.

The Denver White House had described the address in advance as "nonpartisan" but the Republican National Committee bought broadcast time for it.

And Eisenhower, winding up his 20-minute prepared speech, brought in a plea for a GOP Congress. He said:

"Opportunity is ours if we continue to reject policies that lead to ever higher taxes, to regimentation, to dependence on a government far from our homes.

"Opportunity will be ours if we keep a government of teamwork—a government not of partisan rivalries, but of harmony and good will—a government whose President and Congress, joined together by the Republican philosophy, will continue their advance along the course charted 21 months ago."

For the most part, the speech was devoted to farm problems. But Eisenhower said at the outset that "I do not mean to imply that our farmers' interests are limited to farming. Far from it! Nor is prosperous agriculture of interest to the farmer alone. The welfare of 163 million Americans is bound up with our nation's agriculture—just as every farmer is affected by all national and world affairs."

SBA To Make Loans

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (AP)—The Small Business Administration announced late today it will make disaster loans to owners of businesses and homes destroyed or damaged by Hurricane Hazel.

Storm's Fury Smashes Into N. Y., Penna.

Disaster Crews Alert After Blow Strikes Carolinas, Virginia

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—Hurricane Hazel, one of the most dangerously erratic storms of the century, grazed Washington with unsurpassed fury tonight and smashed into the Northeastern states.

At least nine persons died when the hurricane swept into the Carolinas from the sea and battered its way northward. Thousands were homeless, as it moved along with express train speed.

There were signs that the storm —third hurricane to hit the populous Northeast in six weeks—was expending its strength. But it was dying by almost imperceptible degrees and, in its death throes, it was menacingly wicked.

Ships Change Course

Ashore and at sea millions cringed before its awesome might.

Ships frantically changed course. Airplanes fled like game birds before a forest fire. Men pitted their puny strength in a frantic battle to blunt its destructiveness.

None of the nation's big seaboard cities was directly in its path. But it staggered them with majestic insolence, its whining winds and curtains of rain marching escort for 300 miles around its center.

Weathermen called it "One of the most erratic hurricanes in history."

It flanked New York to the west by about 80 to 100 miles—the first time this century that an October hurricane cut behind the city.

The storm's center hit central Pennsylvania headon.

Storm 10 Days Old

The 10-day-old storm, eighth hurricane of the season, already had wrought death and destruction along a twisting path from its Caribbean spawning area far at sea.

Behind it lay the stricken island of Haiti, where the storm struck Tuesday, razing whole towns and leaving a death toll estimated about 100.

Behind it also lay the battered, debris choked Carolina coast where the hurricane early today veered from sea with great force into the continental U. S. At least five persons were killed in the Carolinas and Virginia, two in Delaware, and two in Pennsylvania.

Civil Defense forces, volunteer aides, policemen and firemen stood alert through a night frought with the storm's omens of disaster.

New York City was swept by gusts of "more than 100 miles an hour shortly before 8 p.m.

Earlier, as the storm swept past Washington and Baltimore, Washington National Airport registered wind gusts of 98 miles per hour, an intensity never before matched in the nation's capital. Windows were smashed, precious old trees ripped from the Capitol grounds.

Games Are Cancelled

In New York, all outdoor activity—football games, harness racing and the like—was cancelled.

The fire department sounded its "six sixes" — a bell signal placing every fireman in the city on 24-hour disaster alert.

The eight million residents of the city were urged to stay off the streets.

Can't Lose

No Place On Ballot For Yes Or No In German Election

BERLIN, Oct. 15 (AP)—The spectacle of a national election in which no candidate can lose engaged the Soviet zone of Germany today.

A single list of candidates picked by the Communists and their collaborators will be placed before 12 million eligible voters on Sunday to approve as their Volkskammer —Parliament.

There is no place on the ballot to indicate yes or no. A citizen simply takes his ballot and drops it in a box and that is a vote for the entire Parliament.

There is no way to vote no, and no way to deface the ballot without the probability of sudden arrest.

The East German government calls this a "democratic" election. Communist leaders say it qualifies as such because the candidates represent the ruling Socialist Unity (Sed Communist) party, the Christian Democrats, the National Democrats, the Liberal Democrats, the Farmers party, the Communist Youth, the Women's League and the trade unions. There are also six candidates listed as having no party at all.

The only campaigning being done today was organizational work by the Communist machine to get out the vote. Every city block and every village has a "leader"—just as the Nazis did it—who is responsible for the actions of a certain number of people.

The most vigorous appeal to the electorate was made not by a German, but by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov. During his eight-day visit to East Germany which ended last Wednesday he called on children in kindergartens, donned a miner's helmet in uranium shafts, and generally behaved like a politician on tour.

Eastern sources said Molotov's unusual visit had considerable effect on the East German population and bolstered Communist Premier Otto Grotewohl's regime evidence of the senior Soviet diplomat's open support.

The Administration Reports

Budget Chief Gives Examples Of Savings Made By Efficiency

This is another in a series of articles by top executives in the Eisenhower administration offered by the New York Herald Tribune syndicate to some 1,600 daily newspapers throughout the country as a public service. The articles are designed as mid-term reports to the American people on the administration's accomplishments and plans.

By ROWLAND HUGHES
Budget Bureau Director

For almost two years President Eisenhower has been the moving force behind a resolute effort to give the American people a more effective Federal government at the least possible cost. Able support in this undertaking has come from all of his department and agency heads. The whole spirit and atmosphere of the huge machine of government has markedly improved as people of proved experience and ability in management, whom the President has brought in to head up the departments and agencies, have really taken hold of their jobs.

It is common knowledge that the President has sought administrative competence in each person chosen for a top government post. But what this administration has actually done to improve the functioning of government and reduce operating costs is less well known. The results it has achieved by steadfast attention to operating efficiency throughout the government are of interest to every American. They have meant reduced taxes and more money in his pocketbook.

Organization Clarified

I cannot possibly tell you here all that has been done, but I can describe the approach that has been taken and give you some concrete examples of results.

Even before the new administration took office in January, 1953, the President appointed a Committee on Government Organization to make studies and recommend improvements in government operation. That committee co-operated with each designated department and agency head in identifying the principal organization and management problems of the agency for which he would be responsible. Thanks to this head start, the top officials were able, from the day they took office, to work toward increased efficiency and economy.

Since Inauguration Day, systematic and continuing appraisals of organization and operations have been made upon the initiative of agency heads, frequently with the assistance of management consultant firms or outstanding individuals from private life. Also, twelve reorganization plans covering various fields of government were proposed and are now in effect. The net result of this emphasis on improved management and organization throughout the government has been more effective policy control by agency heads, reduction of long-standing backlogs of work, elimination of functions no longer necessary, and substantial savings in operating costs.

New Test On Spending

Unremitting pressure to reduce expenditures — by elimination of duplicatory programs, by better management and more efficient operations, and by using essentiality rather than desirability as a test of government expenditures—cut the spending level in the last fiscal year approximately $10 billion below the level recommended for that year by the past adminis-

Man Conquers Sea

Lone American Aboard Raft Ends 115-Day Ocean Voyage

PAGO PAGO, American Samoa, Oct. 15 (AP)—William Willis — one man against the sea — reached his goal of Samoa today after 115 days on a 35-foot raft during which his water and stove gave out and he lived on raw fish.

The 61-year-old New Yorker, weathered by the long battle against the elements on a drifting voyage from Peru, was healthy and leaped briskly to the dock when his raft was towed in early today.

To 500 cheering Samoans and Americans who met him at the dock, the mariner declared:

"The trip at sea was fantastic and it was also a nightmare and yet it was just a dream which changed from day to day.

"I have had some pleasant and unpleasant experiences. I had to live on sea water, for two months ago my water cans rusted out and when I checked them there was no water and my stove also went bad."

And so he lived on raw fish—mainly dolphins which he said were easy to catch—and the survival rations which he had brought along.

(Presumably, Willis carried some water purifying equipment although this point was not cleared up in Pago Pago dispatches.)

Willis had seen no human being until the ship Manuatele, which had put out to look for him Wednesday, came alongside yesterday 30 miles northeast of Pago Pago.

He said he sighted land but once all across the Pacific — Flint Island some 1,300 miles east of American Samoa.

Willis said he had fought heavy seas, which sometimes washed over his little raft, but had encountered only one squall. He praised the sea worthiness of his raft. He had designed the light balsa wood craft himself.

University Regents Keep Report Secret

Maryland Has 2 Years In Which To Make Changes

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 5 (AP)—The University of Maryland's Board of Regents reaffirmed today their decision not to make public a full controversial accrediting report, but declared in a statement that the University has two years to make certain recommended improvements.

The board said it was refusing to release the report made by the Middle States Association of Colleges because "it is confidential, much of it is now out of date, as a number of changes and improvements recommended by the committee have been put into effect."

The regents added that the length of the report—163 pages—is such that to take "any part of it out of context might give a wrong impression and possibly be injurious to the University."

The board did disclose in the statement that the accrediting organization was concerned about "the highly centralized nature of the administration, the lack of proper status of the faculty and the deans in the organization and operation of the institution and, particularly, in the formulation of educational policies, a library, the status of the school of medicine and intercollegiate athletics."

The regents said that because of "these weaknesses" the Association had deferred the renewal of accreditation until a meeting in April, 1956.

The board said that "most of the reported weakness are being corrected by administrative action, but in two areas—particularly the library and medical school — additional funds will be required of the legislature."

"For instance, action has been taken which will enable the faculty to participate in the formulation of educational policies, the univesity is making every effort to secure an adequate library, and necessary adjustments will be made in the field of intercollegiate athletics."

Dr. Wilson Elkins, who became president of the university this year, was authorized by the regents to answer questions about his plans for meeting the criticism and to furnish more details that would not violate the confidential nature of the report.

Dr. Elkins said he would be available for a news conference to answer the questions probably next week.

The regents' general statement on the accrediting report was the result of a 4½-hour meeting yesterday because of "agitation for the university to release the full and highly controverial report."

The regents received the report in April as a result of a survey made of the university last November. The regents voted to keep it secret.

Jordan Election Scheduled Today

AMMAN, Jordan, Oct. 15 (AP)—Authorized political parties will take part in a Jordan general election for the first time tomorrow when the nation's voters ballot for new Chamber of Deputies.

The election is regarded as a milestone in Jordanian political development. Candidates previously campaigned as individuals, unaffiliated with any group.

Only a generation ago—under the nominal rule of the Ottoman Turks—most of Jordan was a desert area where primitive order was maintained by tribal law. After World War I, Jordan became first a British mandated territory, then an absolute monarchy under the late King Abdullah and later a limited monarchy, with its government responsible to an elected Parliament.

In the past few months the government has drafted laws permitting the formation of political parties. Only two organizations qualified for Saturday's voting—the National Socialists and the UMMA (National) party.

The great majority of candidates for the 40 seats in the Chamber, including pro-government elements and members of such unauthorized parties as the left wing National Front and the Conservative Moslem Brotherhood are campaigning as independents.

Of the 40 seats seven must be Christian, two Circassian and two representing Bedouin tribes.

The soldier vote may prove a decisive factor. Members of Jordan's colorful Arab Legion will vote in their camps as residents of the constituencies in which they are stationed.

State GOP Hits Demo Attack As Smear Campaign

BALTIMORE, Oct. 15 (AP)—Gov. McKeldin's headquarters fired back at H. C. Byrd in a statement issued here today while the governor told newsmen in New Orleans he thought he'd win the election "though it may be close."

McKeldin was in New Orleans to talk to a church meeting.

He said there he thought the Republican party had a "good chance" of retaining control of Congress in the Nov. 2 election.

The Republican governor also relied to charges that jetties were built on the ocean shore north of Ocean City to protect and enhance the value of real estate owned by a former State Roads Commission member, Avery Hall.

The charges were made by Byrd, Democratic candidate for governor.

McKeldin said the jetties were built without consideration of who owned what property and simply to "better Maryland's only ocean-front shore."

He described the attack as "another one of the smears and innuendoes on which he (Byrd) is conducting his campaign."

Meanwhile, the Salisbury Times called Byrd's attack on Hall "scurrilous campaign material" and came out with a page-one editorial against Byrd.

McKeldin called Hall "probably one of the most honorable men in the state of Maryland."

In Baltimore, the governor's office issued a statement outlining the State's policy in employing consulting engineers for highway construction.

Byrd has been critical of fees paid out in connection with the design of several roads being built under the 12-year highway overhaul program.

McKeldin's statement pointed out that the Democratic administration which preceded his made good use of consulting engineers.

The statement said from 1947 to 1950, "fifty contracts were negotiated with consulting engineers for road work other than the Bay Bridge.

"They were paid fees totaling $1,342,916.77," continued the statement.

"The engineering contract negotiated in my predecessor's term for the Bay Bridge called for a fee of $2,563,345.18—making a total of $3,906,261.95 paid in engineering fees during that period," said the governor's statement.

The increase in highway construction since World War II makes it necessary to employ consultants, the governor said.

Storm's Fury

A liner inbound from Bermuda changed course to skirt the storm. It meant a 10-hour delay in its arrival.

Military planes, including jets were flown inland for protection from the hurricane. Commercial airliners by the score were grounded.

In New England, where damage from a September hurricane is still visible, low lying coastal areas were evacuated against storm tides and lashing seas.

Scores of persons were injured and thousands left homeless as Hazel howled up through the Carolinas and Virginia during the day.

Eight or nine persons were unaccounted for on Ocean Island, N.C., and property damage running into the millions was inflicted along a wide swathe from Myrtle Beach, S.C. northward.

The battleship Kentucky, on which construction was halted after it was 80 per cent completed, was torn loose from its moorings at Newport News, Va. and ran aground in the James River. A watchman aboard was reported in no danger.

Ray Schanen of Milwaukee bowled a 300 game while testing new equipment. It will not receive official recognition.

Employ Rainmaker Just As Hurricane Storm Hits Area

FREDERICKSBURG, Va. Oct. 15 (AP)—Fredericksburg City Council today authorized the employment of a commercial rainmaker just as heavy rains spawned by hurricane Hazel poured down on the city.

Before Hazel, though, its been mighty dry hereabouts. The Rappahannock River, the city's only water source, has been falling since Oct. 1 and was at an emergency low.

State Teachers Begin Session

BALTIMORE, Oct. 15 (AP)—Maryland's public school teachers heard a lecture today on foreign affairs and then broke up into smaller groups to talk shop about their teaching specialties.

Rain and a big traffic jam tied up the start of the second general session of the 87th convention of the Maryland State Teachers Association, but Fifth Regiment Armory was jammed with almost 10,000 of them for the lecture.

Erwin D. Canham, editor of the Christian Science Monitor, told them the United States has handled well its immediate international problems but has failed in "genuine, long-range peace making."

He suggested every organization in the United States—professional organizations, trade associations, women's clubs, labor unions, farm cooperatives and fraternal groups—should have a program of international communications, such as an exchange of people between countries.

She did not seem in immediate danger as she dragged her anchors.

Thirty anchored, inactive ships broke away from moorings in Baltimore harbor. Tugs sent out to bring them back gave up the job and scurried for shelter as the winds here reached their height.

Most piers were expected to be under water at high tide and general cargo was removed from them.

Winds up to 84 miles an hour already had hit the belt from Ocean City on the Atlantic to Hagerstown on the Piedmont Plateau by that time.

Cold Air Mass Could Have Altered Hazel

tration. Substantial further reductions in expenditures are anticipated in the present fiscal year, despite the tremendous backlog of nearly $80 billion in unexpended, but largely committed, authorizations to spend which were on the books when this administration took office. This is despite the fact that nearly a quarter of all government expenditures are in support of activities which are mandatory under existing legislation and thus not readily controllable through the budget process. Moreover, two thirds of total budget expenditures are for support of major national security programs, so that every proposed economy has also to undergo careful examination to make sure that no needed defense effort is endangered.

Where Savings Are Made

Although the benefits accruing from improved ervice to the public cannot be expressed in dollars alone, following are a few typical examples of the many thousands of tangible savings which have resulted from our constant efforts to cut costs, improve management, eliminate waste, inefficiency, duplication, and delay, and find better ways of doing the things that must be done.

Federal civilian pay rolls have been pruned by about 10 per cent. The Department of Defense, for example, has reduced civilian employment by 185,000 since January, 1953, saving approximately $600 million annually. The Department of Commerce is saving over $46 million a year on personnel alone.

The government's world-wide fleet of cars has already been reduced over 7,000 saving more than $2,000,000 annually in maintenance charges.

More than $500,000 a year is being saved by allowing each Federal Reserve Bank to cancel and burn worn-out paper currency, instead of requiring that it be shipped to Washington for destruction.

Better purchasing techniques in the General Services Administration are estimated to have saved $67,000,000 in 1953.

Files Are Culled

A new records management program in the Department of Commerce is cutting storage space from 800,000 to 300,000 cubic feet, for a saving of about $1,500,000 a year. A correspondence management program in the Bureau of Internal Revenue, which will cut in half the cost preparing letters and filing copies, has a potential for $5,500,000 in annual savings.

These and countless other examples illustrate ways in which this administration has been able to reduce operating costs. Much more can be done, and, with public support, will be done. The billions spent by the vast and varied organization of our federal government, when broken down into components, are items which can be grasped and handled with understanding, such as uniforms, clothing, trucks, typewriters, sand, gravel, cement, etc. In our huge totals even small items of cost mount up rapidly. For instance, a one-cent increase in the average cost of meals served by the government means $25,000,000 per year!

This administration is proceeding on the principle that when costs are not made an issue expenses will multiply, and when costs are made an issue savings will multiply. Costs have been made an issue for the first time in many years and will remain an issue.

University Regents Keep Report Secret

Maryland Has 2 Years In Which To Make Changes

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 5 (AP)—The University of Maryland's Board of Regents reaffirmed today their decision not to make public a full controversial accrediting report, but declared in a statement that the University has two years to make certain recommended improvements.

The board said it was refusing to release the report made by the Middle States Association of Colleges because "it is confidential, much of it is now out of date, as a number of changes and improvements recommended by the committee have been put into effect."

The regents added that the length of the report—163 pages—is such that to take "any part of it out of context might give a wrong impression and possibly be injurious to the University."

The board did disclose in the statement that the accrediting organization was concerned about "the highly centralized nature of the administration, the lack of proper status of the faculty and the deans in the organization and operation of the institution and, particularly, in the formulation of educational policies, a library, the status of the school of medicine and intercollegiate athletics."

The regents said that because of "these weaknesses" the Association had deferred the renewal of accreditation until a meeting in April, 1956.

The board said that "most of the reported weakness are being corrected by administrative action, but in two areas—particularly the library and medical school — additional funds will be required of the legislature."

"For instance, action has been taken which will enable the faculty to participate in the formulation of educational policies, the univesity is making every effort to secure an adequate library, and necessary adjustments will be made in the field of intercollegiate athletics."

Dr. Wilson Elkins, who became president of the university this year, was authorized by the regents to answer questions about his plans for meeting the criticism and to furnish more details that would not violate the confidential nature of the report.

Dr. Elkins said he would be available for a news conference to answer the questions probably next week.

The regents' general statement on the accrediting report was the result of a 4½-hour meeting yesterday because of "agitation for the university to release the full and highly controverial report."

The regents received the report in April as a result of a survey made of the university last November. The regents voted to keep it secret.

Jordan Election Scheduled Today

AMMAN, Jordan, Oct. 15 (AP)—Authorized political parties will take part in a Jordan general election for the first time tomorrow when the nation's voters ballot for new Chamber of Deputies.

The election is regarded as a milestone in Jordanian political development. Candidates previously campaigned as individuals, unaffiliated with any group.

Only a generation ago—under the nominal rule of the Ottoman Turks—most of Jordan was a desert area where primitive order was maintained by tribal law. After World War I, Jordan became first a British mandated territory, then an absolute monarchy under the late King Abdullah and later a limited monarchy, with its government responsible to an elected Parliament.

In the past few months the government has drafted laws permitting the formation of political parties. Only two organizations qualified for Saturday's voting—the National Socialists and the UMMA (National) party.

The great majority of candidates for the 40 seats in the Chamber, including pro-government elements and members of such unauthorized parties as the left wing National Front and the Conservative Moslem Brotherhood are campaigning as independents.

Of the 40 seats seven must be Christian, two Circassian and two representing Bedouin tribes.

The soldier vote may prove a decisive factor. Members of Jordan's colorful Arab Legion will vote in their camps as residents of the constituencies in which they are stationed.

State GOP Hits Demo Attack As Smear Campaign

BALTIMORE, Oct. 15 (AP)—Gov. McKeldin's headquarters fired back at H. C. Byrd in a statement issued here today while the governor told newsmen in New Orleans he thought he'd win the election "though it may be close."

McKeldin was in New Orleans to talk to a church meeting.

He said there he thought the Republican party had a "good chance" of retaining control of Congress in the Nov. 2 election.

The Republican governor also relied to charges that jetties were built on the ocean shore north of Ocean City to protect and enhance the value of real estate owned by a former State Roads Commission member, Avery Hall.

The charges were made by Byrd, Democratic candidate for governor.

McKeldin said the jetties were built without consideration of who owned what property and simply to "better Maryland's only ocean-front shore."

He described the attack as "another one of the smears and innuendoes on which he (Byrd) is conducting his campaign."

Meanwhile, the Salisbury Times called Byrd's attack on Hall "scurrilous campaign material" and came out with a page-one editorial against Byrd.

McKeldin called Hall "probably one of the most honorable men in the state of Maryland."

In Baltimore, the governor's office issued a statement outlining the State's policy in employing consulting engineers for highway construction.

Byrd has been critical of fees paid out in connection with the design of several roads being built under the 12-year highway overhaul program.

McKeldin's statement pointed out that the Democratic administration which preceded his made good use of consulting engineers.

The statement said from 1947 to 1950, "fifty contracts were negotiated with consulting engineers for road work other than the Bay Bridge.

"They were paid fees totaling $1,342,916.77," continued the statement.

"The engineering contract negotiated in my predecessor's term for the Bay Bridge called for a fee of $2,563,345.18—making a total of $3,906,261.95 paid in engineering fees during that period," said the governor's statement.

The increase in highway construction since World War II makes it necessary to employ consultants, the governor said.

Storm's Fury

A liner inbound from Bermuda changed course to skirt the storm. It meant a 10-hour delay in its arrival.

Military planes, including jets were flown inland for protection from the hurricane. Commercial airliners by the score were grounded.

In New England, where damage from a September hurricane is still visible, low lying coastal areas were evacuated against storm tides and lashing seas.

Scores of persons were injured and thousands left homeless as Hazel howled up through the Carolinas and Virginia during the day.

Eight or nine persons were unaccounted for on Ocean Island, N.C., and property damage running into the millions was inflicted along a wide swathe from Myrtle Beach, S.C. northward.

The battleship Kentucky, on which construction was halted after it was 80 per cent completed, was torn loose from its moorings at Newport News, Va. and ran aground in the James River. A watchman aboard was reported in no danger.

Ray Schanen of Milwaukee bowled a 300 game while testing new equipment. It will not receive official recognition.

Employ Rainmaker Just As Hurricane Storm Hits Area

FREDERICKSBURG, Va. Oct. 15 (AP)—Fredericksburg City Council today authorized the employment of a commercial rainmaker just as heavy rains spawned by hurricane Hazel poured down on the city.

Before Hazel, though, its been mighty dry hereabouts. The Rappahannock River, the city's only water source, has been falling since Oct. 1 and was at an emergency low.

State Teachers Begin Session

BALTIMORE, Oct. 15 (AP)—Maryland's public school teachers heard a lecture today on foreign affairs and then broke up into smaller groups to talk shop about their teaching specialties.

Rain and a big traffic jam tied up the start of the second general session of the 87th convention of the Maryland State Teachers Association, but Fifth Regiment Armory was jammed with almost 10,000 of them for the lecture.

Erwin D. Canham, editor of the Christian Science Monitor, told them the United States has handled well its immediate international problems but has failed in "genuine, long-range peace making."

mountains around Oakland, Westernport and Mount Savage.

She did not seem in immediate danger as she dragged her anchors.

Thirty anchored, inactive ships broke away from moorings in Baltimore harbor. Tugs sent out to bring them back gave up the job and scurried for shelter as the winds here reached their height.

Most piers were expected to be under water at high tide and general cargo was removed from them.

Winds up to 84 miles an hour already had hit the belt from Ocean City on the Atlantic to Hagerstown on the Piedmont Plateau by that time.

Cold Air Mass Could Have Altered Hazel

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (AP)—If a mass of cold air lying to the east of Washington had moved eastward faster, Hurricane Hazel would not have moved inland so fast, the Weather Bureau explained today.

tration. Substantial further reductions in expenditures are anticipated in the present fiscal year, despite the tremendous backlog of nearly $80 billion in unexpended, but largely committed, authorizations to spend which were on the books when this administration took office. This is despite the fact that nearly a quarter of all government expenditures are in support of activities which are mandatory under existing legislation and thus not readily controllable through the budget process. Moreover, two thirds of total budget expenditures are for support of major national security programs, so that every proposed economy has also to undergo careful examination to make sure that no needed defense effort is endangered.

Where Savings Are Made

Although the benefits accruing from improved ervice to the public cannot be expressed in dollars alone, following are a few typical examples of the many thousands of tangible savings which have resulted from our constant efforts to cut costs, improve management, eliminate waste, inefficiency, duplication, and delay, and find better ways of doing the things that must be done.

Federal civilian pay rolls have been pruned by about 10 per cent. The Department of Defense, for example, has reduced civilian employment by 185,000 since January, 1953, saving approximately $600 million annually. The Department of Commerce is saving over $46 million a year on personnel alone.

The government's world-wide fleet of cars has already been reduced over 7,000 saving more than $2,000,000 annually in maintenance charges.

More than $500,000 a year is being saved by allowing each Federal Reserve Bank to cancel and burn worn-out paper currency, instead of requiring that it be shipped to Washington for destruction.

Better purchasing techniques in the General Services Administration are estimated to have saved $67,000,000 in 1953.

Files Are Culled

A new records management program in the Department of Commerce is cutting storage space from 800,000 to 300,000 cubic feet, for a saving of about $1,500,000 a year. A correspondence management program in the Bureau of Internal Revenue, which will cut in half the cost preparing letters and filing copies, has a potential for $5,500,000 in annual savings.

These and countless other examples illustrate ways in which this administration has been able to reduce operating costs. Much more can be done, and, with public support, will be done. The billions spent by the vast and varied organization of our federal government, when broken down into components, are items which can be grasped and handled with understanding, such as uniforms, clothing, trucks, typewriters, sand, gravel, cement, etc. In our huge totals even small items of cost mount up rapidly. For instance, a one-cent increase in the average cost of meals served by the government means $25,000,000 per year!

This administration is proceeding on the principle that when costs are not made an issue expenses will multiply, and when costs are made an issue savings will multiply. Costs have been made an issue for the first time in many years and will remain an issue.

A Little Bit of Heaven

Look into her eyes. I see a little bit of Heaven there.

Look into her eyes. I see no anguish, no worry, no fear of what tomorrow will bring. I see faith, pure and shining.

Look into her eyes. I see the peace our world longs for. I see joy and happiness. I see God's hand upon her.

Look into her eyes. I see love and trust and hope. I see a child of God.

O little child, I look into those eyes, and I hear our Lord say: "Unless you become as little children you shall not enter into the Kingdom of God."

Let us go to Church this Sunday. Let us pray for child-like faith. Let us bring a little bit of Heaven to our world.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. The First Lutheran Church choir of Johnstown, under the direction of Mrs. John Seibert, minister of music, will present a musical program for the banquet. James Sperry, a junior at MJHS, will be the toastmaster at the banquet and Miller will lead the group singing. Rev. Horace Huse, pastor of Main Street Brethren Church, will give the invocation.

The evening worship service will be officially known as "Youth Night." Youth from the different denominations of the town will be in charge of the opening part of the service. Donald Yoder will give the invocation; Janice Edmunds will read the Scripture; Doretta Dunmeyer will give the prayer, and Robert Layton will have charge of the responsive reading. Dr. Holl's message will be entitled, "Faith in God's Forgiveness."

Ushers for the service will be Robert Altfather, Jack Johns, William Burt, Paul Thomas, James Lichty, and Kenneth Ohler. A main section of seats will be reserved for the youth group.

Congressional Action Marks Special Week To Honor Nurses

Throughout the nation, and especially in this area, the US Navy, the US Army, the US Air Force, all through the Department of Defense, are cooperating with many civilian organizations and hospitals in the observance of National Nurse Week.

Lt. Evelyn B. Shields of the US Navy Nurse Corps, who visited here recently from her headquarters at Pittsburgh, said there is still a need for Navy nurses. While here a couple of weeks ago, Lt. Shields enlisted three local nurses who have received commissions as Navy Nurses.

Local Navy Recruiter, Chief Edward J. Carey said details on enlistments can be obtained at his office in the post office building. Commenting on the first National Nurse Week, Chief Carey recalled some of the history of the Navy Nurse Corps.

In 1811, nine years before the birth of Florence Nightingale, a young Navy surgeon was recommending that nurses be included among the personnel of the Navy Hospitals. Although there is a record of women helping to care for the injured Navy men during the Civil and Spanish-American Wars, it was not until 1908 that Dr. Barton's suggestion of establishing a Navy Nurse Corps was passed by Congress. Twenty nurses were assigned to the Naval Medical School Hospital in Washington and this pioneering group is frequently referred to as the "Sacred Twenty." Nurses were soon assigned to other Navy Hospitals, and in 1910 overseas stations were added. As the only women in the Navy, the nurses were a unique group. Congressional order designated them neither as officers nor enlisted, but they had a military as distinguished from civilian status.

During World War I Navy nurses were assigned to hospitals in England, Ireland, Scotland and France, and in 1918 the number of nurses serving exceeded 1,300. Their pay had been increased to $60 per month plus maintenance.

Soon after World War I, the Navy Nurse Corps was reduced considerably during the disarmament program. In 1935 the Economy Act reduced its membership to around 300. When the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor, Navy Nurses were on duty in Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam and aboard the hospital ship Solace. Five nurses were captured on Guam, but were repatriated after being interned in Japan for six months. Eleven nurses captured in the Philippines survived 37 months as prisoners of war. All during imprisonment these courageous women cared for the sick and wounded in the internment camp, working under tremendous difficulties.

One Navy Nurse, part of a Navy operating unit serving with the Army on Battaan, escaped from Corregidor in a submarine to Australia. This nurse was the first person in the entire naval service to receive the Legion of Merit, an honor designated by Congress for outstanding devotion to duty.

During World War II thousands of Reserve nurses served along with the members of the Regular Corps, the grand total in 1945 being over 11,000. The position of the nurse was elevated this war to the designation in May 1944 of rank for the duration of the emergency plus six months. Their salary scale became the same as that of other officers. In 1947 the Army-Navy Nurses Act authorized permanent commissioned rank, with nurses serving in the grades of Ensign through Commander. The Director of the Nurse Corps during her four-year term holds the rank of Captain.

During the emergency in Korea, many Reserve nurses were recalled to active duty to help increase the number of nurses caring for the injured. They served in Navy hospitals at home and overseas, on Navy hospital ships at sea, on military transports, and as flight nurses on hospital planes. As a member of the Navy's patient care team—doctor, nurse and hospitalman—you find them practicing nursing all over the world.

Many Navy Nurses have had extra varied and rich experiences, from teaching nursing to native girls in primitive Pacific islands to assisting in crowded orphanages in Korea after duty hours aboard a hospital ship. Legislation now prevents a reserve nurse from being assigned to active duty without a declaration of war by Congress, unless the nurse volunteers for active duty. During 1954 the Navy expects to commission 1000 nurses in the Reserve, and still has opportunities for nurses between the ages of 21 and 40 to serve in the grades of Ensign, Lieutenant (junior grade), and Lieutenant.

Armed Youths Are Captured Near Franklin

One Wounded When He Resisted Arrest

Three gun-toting Ohio youths were captured recently at Upper Tract in Pendleton County, W. Va., but not until one of the trio was shot in the leg by Cpl. O. G. Webley of the Franklin detachment of West Virginia State Police.

Being held in Pendleton County Jail at Franklin are Charles Faulkenburg Jr., 17, of RD 4, Kent, Ohio, and Russell David Vanmeter, 20, of Akron, Ohio. The third member of the trio, Leslie Robert Cockerham, 19, also of RD 4, Kent, has been under guard in Rockingham Memorial Hospital, Harrisonburg, Va., while being treated for a gunshot wound above the left knee.

Face Multiple Charges

Charges against the young guntoters include breaking and entering, theft, carrying deadly weapons, resisting arrest, and burglarizing of an Upper Tract home.

The arrests followed a series of events which began when Hendron Lough notified the Franklin detachment of State Police Thursday morning that the Midway Service Station which he operates several miles north of Upper Tract had been robbed.

Upon investigating, Cpl. Webley found where a back window of the service station had been pried open, and he discovered a box of 30-30 cartridges which had been dropped just outside the window.

Shortly thereafter Cpl. Webley learned that the home of Robert Lee Swick on Jake Hill, Upper Tract, had been burglarized.

During his investigation, Cpl. Webley was informed that three men had been seen on the Jake Hill Road, and that two and possibly all three of them had pistols strapped on their hips.

Seen On Road

Webley went to the location where the men had been seen and found Faulkenburg, Cockerham and Vanmeter walking along the road. He said he ordered them to put up their hands, and as he was disarming Cockerham and Falkenburg of a Harrington and Richardson .22 target pistol and an Iver Johnson Sealed-8 .22 pistol, Vanmeter ducked behind Webley's car and slipped away through the woods.

When Vanmeter started running the other two started backing away, Webley asserted, and when they reached a pokeberry patch Faulkenburg started running through the brush. Just as Faulkenburg was making his break Webley said that Cockerham made a motion as if to reach for his hip pocket and he shot him in the leg.

After receiving preliminary treatment in Franklin by Dr. Charles J. Sites, Cockerham was taken to the Harrisonburg hospital. According to late reports he is recovering satisfactorily.

Faulkenburg and Vanmeter later surrendered themselves to the police.

Meter Boxes Will Be Used In Frostburg

Drivers May Deposit 25 Cent Forfeits

FROSTBURG — City Clerk Alex G. Close announced that the city has received meter boxes to be attached to parking meter poles at five places in the community, to be used in connection with the new system of parking violations.

The boxes will be located on poles, one on Ormond Street, one in front of the Elks Home, one near John Workman's Restaurant, East Main Street, one in front of St. Michael's rectors, and one on the south side of East Main Street, between Broadway and Water Street.

It ils the plan of the police department to tag cars for overtime parking violations with a small meter ticket in the form of an envelope.

Persons receiving the envelopes are expected to forfeit 25 cents and place it in the collection boxes closest to the point at which they are located. Failure to place the envelopes in the box will subject the owner of the car to an additional fine.

Armed Youths Are Captured Near Franklin

One Wounded When He Resisted Arrest

Three gun-toting Ohio youths were captured recently at Upper Tract in Pendleton County, W. Va., but not until one of the trio was shot in the leg by Cpl. O. G. Webley of the Franklin detachment of West Virginia State Police.

Being held in Pendleton County Jail at Franklin are Charles Faulkenburg Jr., 17, of RD 4, Kent, Ohio, and Russell David Vanmeter, 20, of Akron, Ohio. The third member of the trio, Leslie Robert Cockerham, 19, also of RD 4, Kent, has been under guard in Rockingham Memorial Hospital, Harrisonburg, Va., while being treated for a gunshot wound above the left knee.

Face Multiple Charges

Charges against the young gunstoters include breaking and entering, theft, carrying deadly weapons, resisting arrest, and burglarizing of an Upper Tract home.

The arrests followed a series of events which began when Hendron Lough notified the Franklin detachment of State Police Thursday morning that the Midway Service Station which he operates several miles north of Upper Tract had been robbed.

Upon investigating, Cpl. Webley found where a back window of the service station had been pried open, and he discovered a box of 30-30 cartridges which had been dropped just outside the window.

Shortly thereafter Cpl. Webley learned that the home of Robert Lee Swick on Jake Hill, Upper Tract, had been burglarized.

During his investigation, Cpl. Webley was informed that three men had been seen on the Jake Hill Road, and that two and possibly all three of them had pistols strapped on their hips.

Seen On Road

Webley went to the location where the men had been seen and found Faulkenburg, Cockerham and Vanmeter walking along the road. He said he ordered them to put up their hands, and as he was disarming Cockerham and Falkenburg of a Harrington and Richardson .22 target pistol and an Iver Johnson Sealed-8 .22 pistol, Vanmeter ducked behind Webley's car and slipped away through the woods.

When Vanmeter started running the other two started backing away, Webley asserted, and when they reached a pokeberry patch Faulkenburg started running through the brush. Just as Faulkenburg was making his break Webley said that Cockerham made a motion as if to reach for his hip pocket and he shot him in the leg.

After receiving preliminary treatment in Franklin by Dr. Charles J. Sites, Cockerham was taken to the Harrisonburg hospital. According to late reports he is recovering satisfactorily.

Faulkenburg and Vanmeter later surrendered themselves to the police.

Meter Boxes Will Be Used In Frostburg

Drivers May Deposit 25 Cent Forfeits

FROSTBURG — City Clerk Alex G. Close announced that the city has received meter boxes to be attached to parking meter poles at five places in the community, to be used in connection with the new system of parking violations.

The boxes will be located on poles, one on Ormond Street, one in front of the Elks Home, one near John Workman's Restaurant, East Main Street, one in front of St. Michael's rectors, and one on the south side of East Main Street, between Broadway and Water Street.

It ils the plan of the police department to tag cars for overtime parking violations with a small meter ticket in the form of an envelope.

Persons receiving the envelopes are expected to forfeit 25 cents and place it in the collection boxes closest to the point at which they are located. Failure to place the envelopes in the box will subject the owner of the car to an additional fine.

The boxes, according to officials at the city hall, are being put in to use to relieve violators from the responsibility of returning their tickets to City Hall.

The Finger Points But Doesn't Help

The last time Russia acknowledged the existence of the U. N. Commission on Prisoners of War was a curt memo three years ago which denied that Russia was holding any war prisoners except some Germans for "war crimes." The Russian satellites and Red China have never bothered to answer queries from the commission.

At the sixth annual meeting held last month at Geneva the commission reported there were 1,365,841 Germans, Italians and Japanese still missing as a result of World War II.

The finger points directly at Russia and her satellites. About a year ago the Russians, in an obvious effort to influence the German elections, freed some German war prisoners and promised to free the remainder with the exception of the "war criminals."

The Germans who were freed immediately began telling stories to the Red Cross and members of the U. N. commission which made it clear that at least 36,000 Germans were being held by the Russians at various camps. The returnees named names and places.

Italians have no word of an entire division which was sent to the Russian front during the warmest stages of the Hitler-Mussolini honeymoon and presumably captured. The Japanese know that there are thousands of their nationals, former members of the Manchurian days of World War II, and who are still alive.

What to do about such a situation? The commission has proposed that new rules be formulated to protect prisoners of war so they will not be grossly and criminally mistreated, as were U. S. and other prisoners by the Chinese and North Koreans. But Russia never abides by rules, and adopting new ones will not ease the plight of prisoners still alive after nine years of captivity and it will be small solace to their families.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Dogs Are People

It is a peculiarity of a humorless period that Defense Secretary Charles Wilson's analogy, comparing bird dogs to kennel dogs, should be used to create a political hullabaloo by literal-minded and witless persons who do not realize that to one who loves dogs, dogs are people.

They have character and personality and are so understanding that sometimes one wonders whether long association with man has not, in some manner, given to the dog the better qualities of the human and to some men, the lower qualities of the dog. No dog would smoke marijuana or voluntarily get drunk. The other day, at a very early hour in the morning, I was walking my keeshond, Joe, in Riverside Park. He stopped to gaze upon two humans, a male and a female, who were having their breakfast on a park bench. The breakfast consisted of one large bottle of what, even at a distance, smelt like raw whisky. Joe passed on in high disdain.

Joe's real name is Walsdaag but we call him Joe for short. A lady, who can lash it out if she chooses to, asked me if I had named him after Joe Stalin or Joe McCarthy. I told her that as he had come to me during the famed Mundt hearings, I called him Joe for the senator. She said that the senator deserved to be named after a dog.

Somehow this woman did not understand that to name a dog after a man is a compliment to the man. For dogs are faithful, loyal, sensitive to errors on their part, hopeful that all will go well with those they love. They never stab a friend in the back and if ever I have known anyone to bite the hand that fed him, it was a human. And among those humans are some highly placed. For instance, I would not vote for a certain senator, not because he and I disagree, but because secretly we do agree. He says it the other way in public because he has no courage. Dogs are not like that.

My old dog, Brownie, who died of a cancer, fought to the last painful moment not to disgrace herself in the house. Brownie was a philosopher and spent hours ruminating upon the foibles of the human race. She always ended her deep thinking with a profound sigh and generally turned over, at the end of it, and went to sleep, as though to say that she had given man all the time she could and had come up with nothing.

Charles Wilson goes hunting and he therefore knows the best qualities of good dogs. There are, of course, bad dogs as there are bad humans; there are even stupid dogs, but I have encountered few of them among the many I know. Dogs are psychologists and know those who abuse them or hate them, particularly among humans.

It is remarkable to note how they take cover when a dog-hating cop comes along to give tickets to those who have allowed their animals to run in the grass for a few minutes off the leash. One day, my dog friends will hold a convention and pass a resolution against that cop. Alas! They will fail in their efforts, for they have no votes. Among humans, even dopes have votes.

Joe and I discussed Charles Wilson this morning. The name was strange to him and he cocked his head to one side and then to the other and finally smiled. When I mentioned Walter Reuther, he gave a sharp yelp, as though to say that that fellow does not know one dog from the other. I tried to explain that I know nothing about this fellow Reuther's family life, but my guess would be there is a dog in it somewhere.

It is remarkable how low politicians will sink in a dull and lack-lustre campaign. They will even involve dogs in their meaningless controversies. All that Charles Wilson said was that a bird dog is a self reliant animal and that he, Wilson, likes self-reliant people. Ralph Waldo Emerson made much a to-do about self-reliance which used to be regarded as a noble quality and a particularly American one. Since when has it become an insult in this country to praise a human as self-reliant?

Secretary Wilson's 'Bird Dog' Remark Reminiscent Of Dewey's Slip In '48

By Drew Fearson

WASHINGTON — During the 1948 presidential campaign, Tom Dewey was coasting along toward the home stretch looking like a certain winner. The Democrats were split. Henry Wallace was siphoning off the Northern liberal vote. Strom Thurmond and the Dixiecrats were siphoning off the Southern conservative vote. Harry Truman looked like a sure loser to Dewey.

Then Dewey's train, stopping at Beaucoup, Ill., attracted its normal gathering of fans and friends, and as the candidate came out on the rear platform, the locomotive engineer by accident gave the train a backward jolt.

"That's the first lunatic I've had for an engineer," exploded Dewey. "He probably ought to be shot at sunrise."

That remark, immediately quoted all over the United States, may well have cost Dewey the election. It was quoted not only by railroad people, who knew how easy it was for an engineer to jolt a train in coupling it up. And it was quoted by labor and white-collar workers as a sign that they were going to have an unsympathetic, perhaps even ruthless, executive in the White House.

So that hasty, last-minute remark by Tom Dewey on October 13 may have switched a lot of votes in 1948.

Wilson's Dog Days

It was at almost exactly the same time—October 11—in the current campaign that Secretary of Defense Charley Wilson got off his now famous remark about dogs and the unemployed. And it may have the same reverberations.

Of course, the Democrats seemed to be in the ascendency at the time Charley put his foot in his mouth. But it had been expected that the Republicans would pick up. In fact, every member of the cabinet — except John Foster Dulles—was out raising money for the campaign.

Now GOP leaders devoutly wish one of those money-raisers, Charley Wilson, had stayed at home.

Worst trouble about Wilson's faux pas is that it recalled all the things he's done that the politician's wanted forgotten: His crack about "What's good for General Motors is good for the United States;" and especially his concentration of big defense orders in the hands of one company, namely General Motors. It was only recently that Wilson was persuaded to reverse this in order to let Chrysler go back to it original contract for making tanks.

H-Bomb Affects Weather

A thin cloud of dust sent 30 miles high by the recent H-bomb explosions has U. S. weathermen worried. They fear it may change the weather of some parts of the world.

Ever since the first atomic blast at Hiroshima, Japan, almost 10 years ago, the Weather Bureau has been constantly asked: "How will the bomb affect the weather?"

Until a month ago, the answer was: "It won't." In some cases, the blasts caused heavy rainfall within the immediate vicinity. Otherwise, they seemed to have no effect at all. There simply was not enough force in the A-bomb to account for winds, storms, or hurricanes around the world. It would take 200,000 A-bombs to get a good-sized hurricane started, said Col. Ben Holzman, formerly chief weatherman for the Air Force. Even a thunderstorm would require the force of two or three A-bombs.

It was not until the hydrogen-bomb explosion of March 1, with its 30-mile-high, 150-mile-long cloud of atomic debris, that anybody began to think about the weather effect of kicking all this dust into the air.

Nevertheless, it has long been known that a very small amount of dust very high up can have the effect of turning summer into winter.

This is what the weathermen call an "insulation" effect. In other words, the dust insulates the rays of the sun from the earth. So far it has occurred only after giant volcanoes erupt.

In 1816, the eruption of Tamboro in the Dutch East Indies was followed by the coldest summer ever known in New England. For a long time 1816 was known as "the year without summer."

Volcano Vs. H-Bomb

In 1883 another Dutch East Indies volcano, Krakato, was completely pulverized in a massive two-day explosion. About 10 cubic miles of debris was tossed into the upper air where it was spread by westerly winds and eventually blanketed the entire world.

During that year, Japan had an unusually cold summer while the dust clouds caused brilliant red sunsets and a dark reddish ring around the sun called "Bishop's Ring" after the English scientist, S. E. Bishop.

This year, following the H-bomb explosion of March 1, the "Bishop's Ring" was seen again in Japan, and, more important, the Japanese summer was delayed until about mid-August.

Whether or not the H-bomb explosions caused the freakish weather is a question. Probably the dust cloud raised by our great Eikini bomb test was only a fraction of the Krakatao dust cloud, for the Elugelab atoll, destroyed by the 1952 "hydrogen device," was only one mile wide, a few feet high, and left a crater 150 feet deep as compared with Krakatao, which covered 18 square miles, rose to a height of 1,400 feet, and left a crater 1,000 feet deep.

But at least the Weather Bureau no longer pooh-poohs the question of the H-bomb's effect on the weather. And since the September meeting of the World Meteorological Organization in Geneva, the weathermen are watching to see if Japan's freak weather will be repeated in other parts of the globe.

Government Request To Disqualify Judge Justified

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—When the government presents a case to a federal court, it is entitled to a fair trial, and the judge who tries the case is usually obligated to disqualify himself if he has previously expressed an opinion adverse to either party in the case.

This is the rule and the custom in American jurisprudence. Yet it is an amazing example of the prejudices that exist today where anti-Communist controversies are involved to find the U. S. attorney himself under attack when he asks for the disqualification of a judge.

There should be no surprise that the propriety of Judge Youngdahl sitting as a judge in the case of Owen Lattimore—indicted for denying under oath that he was a "promoter of Communist interests"—is being questioned by Leo Rover, U. S. attorney. At the time the first ruling was handed down more than 18 months ago, this writer reported the reaction among many members of the bar to the Younghadl decision and particularly to the judge's gratuitous comments which had nothing to do with the indictments he was passing on but had a lot to do with revealing his tendency to pass judgment on the merits of the case itself even though no testimony had as yet been presented.

Cites 1953 Dispatch

On May 6, 1953, this correspondent wrote in a Washington dispatch as follows:

"When U.S. District Judge Luther Youngdahl—the former governor of Minnesota who was appointed by President Truman in a political maneuver that caused quite a flurry in Republican ranks in the Northwest— threw out four of seven counts in the indictment against Owen Lattimore, quite a lot of curiosity and puzzlement was aroused in legal circles here. For the judge was not content to dismiss the four counts but in his written opinion said there was 'serious doubts in the court's mind whether any count in this indictment can finally pass the test of materiality.'

"The curiosity arises because it is being asked: how can a federal judge who has expressed doubt about the three remaining counts in an indictment give a fair trial to the Government of the United States in prosecuting the case when he has already prejudged the issues? Wouldn't a juror be disqualified if he expressed publicly such doubts before a trial took place?

"There is some question also as to whether Judge Youngdahl has as yet been finally assigned to the Lattimore case for trial but, if he has been, then it would not be surprising if the government asked that another judge be assigned in view of this prejudgment.

"Judge Youngdahl's opinion arouses puzzlement not because of the things he said but the things he apparently omitted to say or to take into account in his formal opinion.

"Thus, although it wasn't necessary for Judge Youngdahl to do so to make his point, he declared that the Tydings Committee of the Senate had investigated the charges against Owen Lattimore and 'concluded there was no foundation to the charges against him.' One would have thought in all fairness that the judge would have taken cognizance of the investigation made by a second Senate committee under the chairmanship of Senator McCarran of Nevada, which also investigated the same charges and spent an even longer time doing it and then came up with the conclusion that Owen Lattimore was 'a conscious, articulate instrument of the Soviet conspiracy in the United States.' To state the conclusion of one committee and omit the conclusion of the other committee is to cause more puzzlement.

Ignored Committee Request

"The only reference that Judge Youngdahl makes to the McCarran Committee report is to say that 'apparently the committee could discover no evidence from its investigation of the testimony of the various witnesses that defendant lied in denying that he was a Communist, a member of the Communist party, a Soviet spy or a fellow traveler.'

"Here is an attempt by the judge to evaluate the Senate committee's work and yet, so far as conclusions are concerned, he apparently ignores the fact that the Senate committee did ask the Department of Justice to submit the perjury charges to a federal grand jury and and did point to specific contradictions which, in its judgement, merited attention. Is it the duty of a Senate committee to submit all its evidence of alleged perjury before the trial begins or is it the duty of the Justice Department to do so during the trial itself?

"Judge Youngdahl did say, with reference to the three counts that remained for trial, that 'the question of materiality, like the question of pertinency, is a question of law for the court to decide when the government's evidence is in or at the conclusion of all the testimony.'

"But if that's to be the procedure, then why did Judge Youngdahl feel it necessary, even without hearing any evidence, to cast doubt on the counts in the indictment left to be tried? This and other questions are being asked as the case is being discussed among lawyers here, some of whom say the Youngdahl decision is quite unprecedented."

Notwithstanding the reaction to the case in May 1953, it is being asserted now in rebuttal to U. S. Attorney Rover's affidavit charging prejudice and personal bias on the part of Judge Youngdahl that something very unusual and surprising is being done by the Department of Justice. It would have been unusual indeed if the issue of prejudice and bias had been overlooked by the government's attorneys. Attorney General Brownell has rightly expressed his approval of Mr. Rover's action.

Baering Down On The News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

We are back from the World Series after tagging some bases that weren't in the park.

The series is the American adaptation of Soviet biesbol except it's played on foot. The Russians use tanks.

There is also a bit of the Orient about the home runs. We said at the time if Dusty Rhodes' second homer was Chinese we hope you never have to send your laundry so far.

The Series is a peculiar manifestation of American madness in ticket form. Speculators got rich just saying they didn't have any.

During the Series we naturally lost track of world affairs and are surprised to hear from Kingsbury Smith that the nine-power conference concluded their fifth plenary session shaking hands instead of heads.

Kingsbury is our European general manager of International News Service. And knows his business like a man painting forget-me-nots on blue delft china.

Fourteen years ago Kingsbury completed one of my book collections by sending me the hundredth anniversary of London Punch. They printed it July 1941 during the blitz. It's thinner than an invalid's eye-lids but it completes my collection from July 1841.

Kingsbury Smith has briefed me on what happened outside the ballparks since October first. And I want to state that I covered one of the games from the television in Jack Dempsey's. We are collecting for the New York Association for the Blind. So we do both jobs at once. And get $131.45—very good for a lunch hour.

Words Are Expendable

By Brother Barnabas

Words are indispensable as a medium of communication. They may be wise or foolish, helpful or harmful. They may be used to express thought, or conceal it or leave one in doubt.

"A man and his wife 'had words' the other morning and separated" may be a true statement, but its meaning is doubtful.

A wise man once declared that "a word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in a setting of silver" (Proverbs 25:11).

Words are "expendable." They will go the limit to express any idea one may desire to convey. It is rumored that they have been used in profanity.

"I know what I want to say but can't find words to express it" could be a confession of laziness, for there is a "word book" that contains all the words in common and uncommon usage. And if your idea is out-of-bounds a new word will be coined to serve your purpose.

Will Become Obsolete

"McCarthyism" is a new word in our Americanese. It will eventually fade away and be marked "obsolete" in our dictionaries.

Every trade and profession has its own vocabulary. A group of philosophers understand one another, but if a carpenter edged in on their conversation it would be as meaningless as the lingo of the Choctaws.

By the same token, the philosophers would not be able to build a boat or a house.

If you are ever lost and want to know where you are, listen to the speech of the natives. If they say "DeTROIT" you are there. If they say "DEtroit" you are in Pittsburgh.

If you are down on the bay and hear profanity and billingsgate you are at the fish-market.

If you hear such words as "pie," "take," "stick," "layout" amidst the whir of wheels and the smell of printers' ink, you are in a newspaper printery.

Hoosegow, calaboose, the coop or the jug—if you don't know what they are, tangle with a policeman and he will show you.

"Mind your P's and Q's" is sound advice whether in speaking or writing.

A certain college professor wrote on his blackboard the notice: "Prof. Sanka will not meet his classes today." A mischievous wag came along and erased the "c" in "classes." When the prof saw it he rubbed out the letter "l" and so evened the score.

Play Many Roles

"Will you have some molasses?" asked a kindly lady who was feeding a hungry urchin with a sweet tooth. He replied: "I ain't had no 'lasses yit, how can I have any mo' lasses, when I ain't had no lasses?"

Words play many roles, Poets paint pictures with them. They can fly. They can sting. They can be as sweet as honey and as bitter as gall.

The preacher had spoken the final words in the marriage ceremony, "I pronounce you husband and wife," when the bride in a flush of ecstasy exclaimed, "O Pa'son, dem were sweet words."

" 'Tis sweet to love, but O, how bitter
To love a gal and then not git 'er"

is a corruption of the King's English called doggerel. If anyone objects to the invidious comparison, between the sentiment and a dog, let him say so and he will be forgiven.

Words too may be double-faced. In hard times we are admonished to "husband" our resources. If you have no husband and no resources you are in a bad way.

A patient in the hospital had the triple expense of a room, the doctor and a private nurse, all of which he could not afford.

To economize, he dismissed the doctor and kept the nurse. In time he married the nurse and thus "husbanded" his resources.

A German reporter would say: "Yesterday Hazel her skirts swished the Atlantic seaboard over." A simplified American statement would be, "The weatherman gave us wind and rain yesterday. Clear and cloudy tomorrow."

Cure For Warts

Life itself may depend on a choice of words. Doctors write their prescriptions with care, and pharmacists compound them meticulously.

One time, however, a pharmacist carelessly doubled the prescription and caused the death of a chaplain of the United States Senate.

Nearly every boy is afflicted with warts at some time or other in his career. This cure is offered, but not vouched for:

Make as many little pellets of bread as you have warts to get rid of. These you place in a silk bag, and persuade a girl (who must have red hair) to sleep with the bag under her pillow three nights. Then you put the pellets outside on a wall, and wait for a blackbird to come and feed.

You must allow the blackbird to get only one pellet, and then chase it away, and repeat the performance every day until all the pellets have been eaten. Each time you must repeat in a whisper the rhyme:

Blackbird, blackbird, fly away,
Eating only one a day,
Come tomorrow, come again,
Take my warts away, Amen.

There's another recipe for corns, but it is too corny to print here, says

Rheumatic Fever Attack Makes Victim Susceptible

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

One attack of rheumatic fever makes the victim more susceptible to the disease. In this respect, the malady differs from measles and mumps which generally confer everlasting immunity.

Rheumatic fever is mainly a childhood ailment but occurs in young adults and occasionally in older persons. The active stage is preceded as a rule by a streptococcal infection, which is thought to be the trigger mechanism.

Only one type of streptococcus (beta hemolytic) is capable of producing rheumatic fever. In addition, there is a hereditary tendency. This combination has led authorities to believe that rheumatic fever develops when the causative streptococcus affects an individual with an inherent susceptibility to the disease.

Fifteen days usually elapse between the appearance of sore throat or tonsilitis and the onset of rheumatic fever. There are many theories as to what happens during this incubation period. A likely explanation centers about the antibodies the body manufactures to counteract strep infection.

The susceptible person is allergic to these antibodies and rheumatic fever is the outcome. This explains why the streptococcus is never found in the areas affected by the disease: the heart, joints, or brain.

Recurrent attacks of rheumatic fever are prevented by early and adequate treatment of strep infection. When a child who has had a previous bout develops sore throat with fever, the physician administers an antibiotic such as penicillin. The sooner this is done the better bacause it may nip in the bud the usual chain of events leading to recurrence.

Also following an attack of rheumatic fever, many physicians recommend penicillin in small daily doses or a large monthly dose to prevent strep infection from developing.

Children must take this drug religiously during fall, winter, and spring under the close supervision of the psysician. The amount given is just enough to protect the youngster against the causative agent. The plan is continued for six years after the last attack and analyses show that the plan reduces the number of recurrences.

Little change has taken place in the treatment of rheumatic fever with the exception of the use of ACTH or cortisone. These hormones have proved life saving in some and of temporary benefit in others; they are not needed in all cases.

Meanwhile, the salicylates and bed rest still are time honored remedies and in most instances, this compination is hard to beat.

THROUGH AT 40?

R. L. writes: Didn't some famous doctor say years ago that men were useless after 40 and ought to be killed off?

REPLY

This is a garbled version of a talk made by the famous Sir William Osler, many years ago. He stated that man's most productive period was between 25 and 40 and that after 60, he should get out of harness. If Dr. Osler were alive today, he would have thought differently because man's productive years are being extended with each succeeding decade.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me!

By Bennett Cerf

An unhappy fellow in Moriarity's was voicing his troubles. "Guess you'll have to drown your sorrows," suggested the bartender with one eye cocked on the cash register. "I've tried to," confessed the unhappy one, "but darned if I can get my wife down to the lake!"

What some people consider "beautiful" writing often impresses more knowing critics merely as "purple prose"—overwritten, fancy passages that a more talented author could express far better. Such overblown prose is called "fine writing" by the pros—and Webster points out, "Fine writing is bad writing—where every clapping of hands is an 'ovation,' every fortune 'colossal,' every marriage 'an alliance,' and every crowd 'a sea of faces'."

"Marriage," we are informed by Archie of Duffy's Tavern, "is brought about by two people: a single girl and her anxious mother."

The Japanese know that there are thousands of their nationals, former members of the Manchurian days of World War II, and who are still alive.

What to do about such a situation? The commission has proposed that new rules be formulated to protect prisoners of war so they will not be grossly and criminally mistreated, as were U. S. and other prisoners by the Chinese and North Koreans. But Russia never abides by rules, and adopting new ones will not ease the plight of prisoners still alive after nine years of captivity and it will be small solace to their families.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Dogs Are People

It is a peculiarity of a humorless period that Defense Secretary Charles Wilson's analogy, comparing bird dogs to kennel dogs, should be used to create a political hullabaloo by literal-minded and witless persons who do not realize that to one who loves dogs, dogs are people.

They have character and personality and are so understanding that sometimes one wonders whether long association with man has not, in some manner, given to the dog the better qualities of the human and to some men, the lower qualities of the dog. No dog would smoke marijuana or voluntarily get drunk. The other day, at a very early hour in the morning, I was walking my keeshond, Joe, in Riverside Park. He stopped to gaze upon two humans, a male and a female, who were having their breakfast on a park bench. The breakfast consisted of one large bottle of what, even at a distance, smelt like raw whisky. Joe passed on in high disdain.

Joe's real name is Walsdaag but we call him Joe for short. A lady, who can lash it out if she chooses to, asked me if I had named him after Joe Stalin or Joe McCarthy. I told her that as he had come to me during the famed Mundt hearings, I called him Joe for the senator. She said that the senator deserved to be named after a dog.

Somehow this woman did not understand that to name a dog after a man is a compliment to the man. For dogs are faithful, loyal, sensitive to errors on their part, hopeful that all will go well with those they love. They never stab a friend in the back and if ever I have known anyone to bite the hand that fed him, it was a human. And among those humans are some highly placed. For instance, I would not vote for a certain senator, not because he and I disagree, but because secretly we do agree. He says it the other way in public because he has no courage. Dogs are not like that.

My old dog, Brownie, who died of a cancer, fought to the last painful moment not to disgrace herself in the house. Brownie was a philosopher and spent hours ruminating upon the foibles of the human race. She always ended her deep thinking with a profound sigh and generally turned over, at the end of it, and went to sleep, as though to say that she had given man all the time she could and had come up with nothing.

Charles Wilson goes hunting and he therefore knows the best qualities of good dogs. There are, of course, bad dogs as there are bad humans; there are even stupid dogs, but I have encountered few of them among the many I know. Dogs are psychologists and know those who abuse them or hate them, particularly among humans.

It is remarkable to note how they take cover when a dog-hating cop comes along to give tickets to those who have allowed their animals to run in the grass for a few minutes off the leash. One day, my dog friends will hold a convention and pass a resolution against that cop. Alas! They will fail in their efforts, for they have no votes. Among humans, even dopes have votes.

Joe and I discussed Charles Wilson this morning. The name was strange to him and he cocked his head to one side and then to the other and finally smiled. When I mentioned Walter Reuther, he gave a sharp yelp, as though to say that that fellow does not know one dog from the other. I tried to explain that I know nothing about this fellow Reuther's family life, but my guess would be there is a dog in it somewhere.

It is remarkable how low politicians will sink in a dull and lack-lustre campaign. They will even involve dogs in their meaningless controversies. All that Charles Wilson said was that a bird dog is a self reliant animal and that he, Wilson, likes self-reliant people. Ralph Waldo Emerson made much a to-do about self-reliance which used to be regarded as a noble quality and a particularly American one. Since when has it become an insult in this country to praise a human as self-reliant?

Secretary Wilson's 'Bird Dog' Remark Reminiscent Of Dewey's Slip In '48

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — During the 1948 presidential campaign, Tom Dewey was coasting along toward the home stretch looking like a certain winner. The Democrats were split. Henry Wallace was siphoning off the Northern liberal vote. Strom Thurmond and the Dixiecrats were siphoning off the Southern conservative vote. Harry Truman looked like a sure loser to Dewey.

Then Dewey's train, stopping at Beaucoup, Ill., attracted its normal gathering of fans and friends, and as the candidate came out on the rear platform, the locomotive engineer by accident gave the train a backward jolt.

"That's the first lunatic I've had for an engineer," exploded Dewey. "He probably ought to be shot at sunrise."

That remark, immediately quoted all over the United States, may well have cost Dewey the election. It was quoted not only by railroad people, who knew how easy it was for an engineer to jolt a train in coupling it up. And it was quoted by labor and white-collar workers as a sign that they were going to have an unsympathetic, perhaps even ruthless, executive in the White House.

So that hasty, last-minute remark by Tom Dewey on October 13 may have switched a lot of votes in 1948.

Wilson's Dog Days

It was at almost exactly the same time—October 11—in the current campaign that Secretary of Defense Charley Wilson got off his now famous remark about dogs and the unemployed. And it may have the same reverberations.

Of course, the Democrats seemed to be in the ascendency at the time Charley put his foot in his mouth. But it had been expected that the Republicans would pick up. In fact, every member of the cabinet — except John Foster Dulles—was out raising money for the campaign.

Now GOP leaders devoutly wish one of those money-raisers, Charley Wilson, had stayed at home.

Worst trouble about Wilson's faux pas is that it recalled all the things he's done that the politician's wanted forgotten: His crack about "What's good for General Motors is good for the United States;" and especially his concentration of big defense orders in the hands of one company, namely General Motors. It was only recently that Wilson was persuaded to reverse this in order to let Chrysler go back to it original contract for making tanks.

H-Bomb Affects Weather

A thin cloud of dust sent 30 miles high by the recent H-bomb explosions has U. S. weathermen worried. They fear it may change the weather of some parts of the world.

Ever since the first atomic blast at Hiroshima, Japan, almost 10 years ago, the Weather Bureau has been constantly asked: "How will the bomb affect the weather?"

Until a month ago, the answer was: "It won't." In some cases, the blasts caused heavy rainfall within the immediate vicinity. Otherwise, they seemed to have no effect at all. There simply was not enough force in the A-bomb to account for winds, storms, or hurricanes around the world. It would take 200,000 A-bombs to get a good-sized hurricane started, said Col. Ben Holzman, formerly chief weatherman for the Air Force. Even a thunderstorm would require the force of two or three A-bombs.

It was not until the hydrogen-bomb explosion of March 1, with its 30-mile-high, 150-mile-long cloud of atomic debris, that anybody began to think about the weather effect of kicking all this dust into the air.

Nevertheless, it has long been known that a very small amount of dust very high up can have the effect of turning summer into winter.

This is what the weathermen call an "insulation" effect. In other words, the dust insulates the rays of the sun from the earth. So far it has occurred only after giant volcanoes erupt.

In 1816, the eruption of Tamboro in the Dutch East Indies was followed by the coldest summer ever known in New England. For a long time 1816 was known as "the year without summer."

Volcano Vs. H-Bomb

In 1883 another Dutch East Indies volcano, Krakato, was completely pulverized in a massive two-day explosion. About 10 cubic miles of debris was tossed into the upper air where it was spread by westerly winds and eventually blanketed the entire world.

During that year, Japan had an unusually cold summer while the dust clouds caused brilliant red sunsets and a dark reddish ring around the sun called "Bishop's Ring" after the English scientist, S. E. Bishop.

This year, following the H-bomb explosion of March 1, the "Bishop's Ring" was seen again in Japan, and, more important, the Japanese summer was delayed until about mid-August.

Whether or not the H-bomb explosions caused the freakish weather is a question. Probably the dust cloud raised by our great Eikini bomb test was only a fraction of the Krakatao dust cloud, for the Elugelab atoll, destroyed by the 1952 "hydrogen device," was only one mile wide, a few feet high, and left a crater 150 feet deep as compared with Krakatao, which covered 18 square miles, rose to a height of 1,400 feet, and left a crater 1,000 feet deep.

But at least the Weather Bureau no longer pooh-poohs the question of the H-bomb's effect on the weather. And since the September meeting of the World Meteorological Organization in Geneva, the weathermen are watching to see if Japan's freak weather will be repeated in other parts of the globe.

Government Request To Disqualify Judge Justified

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—When the government presents a case to a federal court, it is entitled to a fair trial, and the judge who tries the case is usually obligated to disqualify himself if he has previously expressed an opinion adverse to either party in the case.

This is the rule and the custom in American jurisprudence. Yet it is an amazing example of the prejudices that exist today where anti-Communist controversies are involved to find the U. S. attorney himself under attack when he asks for the disqualification of a judge.

There should be no surprise that the propriety of Judge Youngdahl sitting as a judge in the case of Owen Lattimore—indicted for denying under oath that he was a "promoter of Communist interests"—is being questioned by Leo Rover, U. S. attorney. At the time the first ruling was handed down more than 18 months ago, this writer reported the reaction among many members of the bar to the Younghadl decision and particularly to the judge's gratuitous comments which had nothing to do with the indictments he was passing on but had a lot to do with revealing his tendency to pass judgment on the merits of the case itself even though no testimony had as yet been presented.

Cites 1953 Dispatch

On May 6, 1953, this correspondent wrote in a Washington dispatch as follows:

"When U.S. District Judge Luther Youngdahl—the former governor of Minnesota who was appointed by President Truman in a political maneuver that caused quite a flurry in Republican ranks in the Northwest— threw out four of seven counts in the indictment against Owen Lattimore, quite a lot of curiosity and puzzlement was aroused in legal circles here. For the judge was not content to dismiss the four counts but in his written opinion said there was 'serious doubts in the court's mind whether any count in this indictment can finally pass the test of materiality.'

"The curiosity arises because it is being asked: how can a federal judge who has expressed doubt about the three remaining counts in an indictment give a fair trial to the Government of the United States in prosecuting the case when he has already prejudged the issues? Wouldn't a juror be disqualified if he expressed publicly such doubts before a trial took place?

"There is some question also as to whether Judge Youngdahl has as yet been finally assigned to the Lattimore case for trial but, if he has been, then it would not be surprising if the government asked that another judge be assigned in view of this prejudgment.

"Judge Youngdahl's opinion arouses puzzlement not because of the things he said but the things he apparently omitted to say or to take into account in his formal opinion.

"Thus, although it wasn't necessary for Judge Youngdahl to do so to make his point, he declared that the Tydings Committee of the Senate had investigated the charges against Owen Lattimore and 'concluded there was no foundation to the charges against him.' One would have thought in all fairness that the judge would have taken cognizance of the investigation made by a second Senate committee under the chairmanship of Senator McCarran of Nevada, which also investigated the same charges and spent an even longer time doing it and then came up with the conclusion that Owen Lattimore was 'a conscious, articulate instrument of the Soviet conspiracy in the United States.' To state the conclusion of one committee and omit the conclusion of the other committee is to cause more puzzlement.

Ignored Committee Request

"The only reference that Judge Youngdahl makes to the McCarran Committee report is to say that 'apparently the committee could discover no evidence from its investigation of the testimony of the various witnesses that defendant lied in denying that he was a Communist, a member of the Communist party, a Soviet spy or a fellow traveler.'

"Here is an attempt by the judge to evaluate the Senate committee's work and yet, so far as conclusions are concerned, he apparently ignores the fact that the Senate committee did ask the Department of Justice to submit the perjury charges to a federal grand jury and and did point to specific contradictions which, in its judgement, merited attention. Is it the duty of a Senate committee to submit all its evidence of alleged perjury before the trial begins or is it the duty of the Justice Department to do so during the trial itself?

"Judge Youngdahl did say, with reference to the three counts that remained for trial, that 'the question of materiality, like the question of pertinency, is a question of law for the court to decide when the government's evidence is in or at the conclusion of all the testimony.'

"But if that's to be the procedure, then why did Judge Youngdahl feel it necessary, even without hearing any evidence, to cast doubt on the counts in the indictment left to be tried? This and other questions are being asked as the case is being discussed among lawyers here, some of whom say the Youngdahl decision is quite unprecedented."

Notwithstanding the reaction to the case in May 1953, it is being asserted now in rebuttal to U. S. Attorney Rover's affidavit charging prejudice and personal bias on the part of Judge Youngdahl that something very unusual and surprising is being done by the Department of Justice. It would have been unusual indeed if the issue of prejudice and bias had been overlooked by the government's attorneys. Attorney General Brownell has rightly expressed his approval of Mr. Rover's action.

Baering Down On The News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

We are back from the World Series after tagging some bases that weren't in the park.

The series is the American adaptation of Soviet biesbol except it's played on foot. The Russians use tanks.

There is also a bit of the Orient about the home runs. We said at the time if Dusty Rhodes' second homer was Chinese we hope you never have to send your laundry so far.

The Series is a peculiar manifestation of American madness in ticket form. Speculators got rich just saying they didn't have any.

During the Series we naturally lost track of world affairs and are surprised to hear from Kingsbury Smith that the nine-power conference concluded their fifth plenary session shaking hands instead of heads.

Kingsbury is our European general manager of International News Service. And knows his business like a man painting forget-me-nots on blue delft china.

Fourteen years ago Kingsbury completed one of my book collections by sending me the hundredth anniversary of London Punch. They printed it July 1941 during the blitz. It's thinner than an invalid's eye-lids but it completes my collection from July 1841.

Kingsbury Smith has briefed me on what happened outside the ballparks since October first. And I want to state that I covered one of the games from the television in Jack Dempsey's. We are collecting for the New York Association for the Blind. So we do both jobs at once. And get $131.45—very good for a lunch hour.

Words Are Expendable

By Brother Barnabas

Words are indispensable as a medium of communication. They may be wise or foolish, helpful or harmful. They may be used to express thought, or conceal it or leave one in doubt.

"A man and his wife 'had words' the other morning and separated" may be a true statement, but its meaning is doubtful.

A wise man once declared that "a word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in a setting of silver" (Proverbs 25:11).

Words are "expendable." They will go the limit to express any idea one may desire to convey. It is rumored that they have been used in profanity.

"I know what I want to say but can't find words to express it" could be a confession of laziness, for there is a "word book" that contains all the words in common and uncommon usage. And if your idea is out-of-bounds a new word will be coined to serve your purpose.

Will Become Obsolete

"McCarthyism" is a new word in our Americanese. It will eventually fade away and be marked "obsolete" in our dictionaries.

Every trade and profession has its own vocabulary. A group of philosophers understand one another, but if a carpenter edged in on their conversation it would be as meaningless as the lingo of the Choctaws.

By the same token, the philosophers would not be able to build a boat or a house.

If you are ever lost and want to know where you are, listen to the speech of the natives. If they say "DeTROIT" you are there. If they say "DEtroit" you are in Pittsburgh.

If you are down on the bay and hear profanity and billingsgate you are at the fish-market.

If you hear such words as "pie," "take," "stick," "layout" amidst the whir of wheels and the smell of printers' ink, you are in a newspaper printery.

Hoosegow, calaboose, the coop or the jug—if you don't know what they are, tangle with a policeman and he will show you.

"Mind your P's and Q's" is sound advice whether in speaking or writing.

A certain college professor wrote on his blackboard the notice: "Prof. Sanka will not meet his classes today." A mischievous wag came along and erased the "c" in "classes." When the prof saw it he rubbed out the letter "l" and so evened the score.

Play Many Roles

"Will you have some molasses?" asked a kindly lady who was feeding a hungry urchin with a sweet tooth. He replied: "I ain't had no 'lasses yit, how can I have any mo' lasses, when I ain't had no lasses?"

Words play many roles, Poets paint pictures with them. They can fly. They can sting. They can be as sweet as honey and as bitter as gall.

The preacher had spoken the final words in the marriage ceremony, "I pronounce you husband and wife," when the bride in a flush of ecstasy exclaimed, "O Pa'son, dem were sweet words."

" 'Tis sweet to love, but O, how bitter
To love a gal and then not git 'er"

is a corruption of the King's English called doggerel. If anyone objects to the invidious comparison, between the sentiment and a dog, let him say so and he will be forgiven.

Words too may be double-faced. In hard times we are admonished to "husband" our resources. If you have no husband and no resources you are in a bad way.

A patient in the hospital had the triple expense of a room, the doctor and a private nurse, all of which he could not afford.

To economize, he dismissed the doctor and kept the nurse. In time he married the nurse and thus "husbanded" his resources.

A German reporter would say: "Yesterday Hazel her skirts swished the Atlantic seaboard over." A simplified American statement would be, "The weatherman gave us wind and rain yesterday. Clear and cloudy tomorrow."

Cure For Warts

Life itself may depend on a choice of words. Doctors write their prescriptions with care, and pharmacists compound them meticulously.

One time, however, a pharmacist carelessly doubled the prescription and caused the death of a chaplain of the United States Senate.

Nearly every boy is afflicted with warts at some time or other in his career. This cure is offered, but not vouched for:

Make as many little pellets of bread as you have warts to get rid of. These you place in a silk bag, and persuade a girl (who must have red hair) to sleep with the bag under her pillow three nights. Then you put the pellets outside on a wall, and wait for a blackbird to come and feed.

You must allow the blackbird to get only one pellet, and then chase it away, and repeat the performance every day until all the pellets have been eaten. Each time you must repeat in a whisper the rhyme:

Blackbird, blackbird, fly away,
Eating only one a day,
Come tomorrow, come again,
Take my warts away, Amen.

There's another recipe for corns, but it is too corny to print here, says

Rheumatic Fever Attack Makes Victim Susceptible

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

One attack of rheumatic fever makes the victim more susceptible to the disease. In this respect, the malady differs from measles and mumps which generally confer everlasting immunity.

Rheumatic fever is mainly a childhood ailment but occurs in young adults and occasionally in older persons. The active stage is preceded as a rule by a streptococcal infection, which is thought to be the trigger mechanism.

Only one type of streptococcus (beta hemolytic) is capable of producing rheumatic fever. In addition, there is a hereditary tendency. This combination has led authorities to believe that rheumatic fever develops when the causative streptococcus affects an individual with an inherent susceptibility to the disease.

Fifteen days usually elapse between the appearance of sore throat or tonsilitis and the onset of rheumatic fever. There are many theories as to what happens during this incubation period. A likely explanation centers about the antibodies the body manufactures to counteract strep infection.

The susceptible person is allergic to these antibodies and rheumatic fever is the outcome. This explains why the streptococcus is never found in the areas affected by the disease: the heart, joints, or brain.

Recurrent attacks of rheumatic fever are prevented by early and adequate treatment of strep infection. When a child who has had a previous bout develops sore throat with fever, the physician administers an antibiotic such as penicillin. The sooner this is done the better bacause it may nip in the bud the usual chain of events leading to recurrence.

Also following an attack of rheumatic fever, many physicians recommend penicillin in small daily doses or a large monthly dose to prevent strep infection from developing.

Children must take this drug religiously during fall, winter, and spring under the close supervision of the physician. The amount given is just enough to protect the youngster against the causative agent. The plan is continued for six years after the last attack and analyses show that the plan reduces the number of recurrences.

Little change has taken place in the treatment of rheumatic fever with the exception of the use of ACTH or cortisone. These hormones have proved life saving in some and of temporary benefit in others; they are not needed in all cases.

Meanwhile, the salicylates and bed rest still are time honored remedies and in most instances, this compination is hard to beat.

THROUGH AT 40?

R. L. writes: Didn't some famous doctor say years ago that men were useless after 40 and ought to be killed off?

REPLY

This is a garbled version of a talk made by the famous Sir William Osler, many years ago. He stated that man's most productive period was between 25 and 40 and that after 60, he should get out of harness. If Dr. Osler were alive today, he would have thought differently because man's productive years are being extended with each succeeding decade.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me!

By Bennett Cerf

An unhappy fellow in Moriarity's was voicing his troubles. "Guess you'll have to drown your sorrows," suggested the bartender with one eye cocked on the cash register. "I've tried to," confessed the unhappy one, "but darned if I can get my wife down to the lake!"

What some people consider "beautiful" writing often impresses more knowing critics merely as "purple prose"—overwritten, fancy passages that a more talented author could express far better. Such overblown prose is called "fine writing" by the pros—and Webster points out, "Fine writing is bad writing—where every clapping of hands is an 'ovation,' every fortune 'colossal,' every marriage 'an alliance,' and every crowd 'a sea of faces'."

"Marriage," we are informed by Archie of Duffy's Tavern, "is brought about by two people: a single girl and her anxious mother."

Philadelphia's 'Last-Minute' Men Hope To Save Athletics

Ten Businessmen Pledge Cash To Keep Franchise In Philly

Group Matches Offer Of Johnson; Latter Appears Bewildered

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15 (AP)—A band of "last-minute" men plunked their check books on the line today and joined a cross-country tug-of-war with Chicago's Arnold Johnson for the suddenly much sought after Philadelphia Athletics franchise.

Through a spokesman, 10 prominent Philadelphia businessmen announced they had pledged sufficient cash to keep the Athletics in Philadelphia but said the details of their offer would have to be worked out over the coming weekend.

That time element would take matters right down to the 11 a.m. EST, deadline set by Will Harridge, American League president, for a final stand by Roy Mack, the A's executive vice president and key figure in the situation.

In Chicago, Johnson — the baseball-minded financier who thought he practically bought the ball club at an American League meeting last tuesday — said he still has hopes of purchasing the franchise he wants to transfer to Kansas City.

Johnson Bewildered

Johnson said at this point he was a little bewildered but thought it was time he issued "a statement of position." In that statement, Johnson said he was prepared to give Roy Mack a five-year contract and a stock interest in the A's organization at Kansas City. Johnson also said he had promised to give Roy's son, Connie Mack 3d, a job with the club.

Jack Rensel, the Philadelphia syndicate's spokesman, said the 10 members had matched the $3,375,000 offer made by Johnson for the A's franchise.

While Rensel refused to disclose the names of those in the group, reporters on the scene were able to identify the following as they emerged from today's meeting:

Men Are Identified

Paul Harron, president of radio station WIBG; Barney Fischer, oil and automobile industrialist of Lower Merion Township, Pa.; Arthur Gallagher, Philadelphia trucking firm executive and formerly nationally known oarsman; William Anderson, heating and plumbing contractor; Arthur Rosenberg, food chain executive; Joseph Leibman, clothier; Leonard Strick, truck-trailor manufacturer; and Isadore Sley, parking lot company operator.

Rensel issued the following statement after the breakup of today's meeting:

"A group of Philadelphia businessmen is negotiating with Mr. Roy Mack and the Mack family and negotiations are still active and no definite decision will be made until after the weekend, at which time it is hoped a meeting of the minds will be reached.

"Mr. Roy Mack's daughter is being married tomorrow and if a decision is reached before then, we shall notify the press.

Group Vitally Interested

"Needless to say, all of the people involved are responsible citizens of Philadelphia and are vitally interested in keeping the Athletics in Philadelphia. I am not at liberty in revealing the names of the parties involved."

A spokesman, who attended the meeting, said that negotiations had been conducted with the entire Mack family—Roy, his brother, Earle, and their father, Connie Mack Sr.—and that all the Macks "were happy."

Earlier, another spokesman came out of the meeting and told newsmen that there was enough money represented in the board room of the Tradesman's Land Title and Trust Company for the meeting to buy the club. The spokesman added that the group was "over-subscribed" and might have to turn some money back.

This spokesman also went as far as to say the syndicate had enough money to buy four "good ball players" and to hire a top general manager and field manager.

All of the information obtainable from the meeting room was strictly on an individual basis and there were conflicting reports as to the progress being made.

Game Reset Today

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP) — The Fordham-Boston College football game, scheduled for tonight in the Polo Grounds, has been postponed until tomorrow afternoon because of the wind and rains accompanying Hurricane Hazel.

The game will start at 1:30 p.m. (EST).

The Boston College team, generally favored to defeat the Fordham Rams, arrived shortly before the postponement.

Sentinels Play At Hagerstown Friday Night

Fort Hill High School's Sentinels will play at Hagerstown next Friday night at 8 o'clock instead of Saturday, Coach William P. Hahn announced last night.

Hahn said the game originally was set for Saturday, October 23 but Coach Mel Henry of the Hubs contacted him this week and requested that the contest be moved ahead to Friday night.

Stowers Leads Pass Receivers

Wake Forest Player Snares 10 Aerials

GREENSBORO, N. C., Oct. 15 (AP)—Ed Stowers of Wake Forest, with 10 catches, leads the Atlantic Coast Conference in pass receiving, ACC service bureau figures released today indicate. He is trailed by Clemson's Scott Jackson, who has caught seven for 102 yards and one touchdown. Stowers' catches have netted 125 yards and one touchdown.

Ray Quillen of Virginia continues as the conferences punting leader with a 42.7-yard average on seven punts, the minimum requirement to be eligible for the lead. Joe White of Wake Forest is second with a 40-yard average on seven kicks, and Henry Strempek of Virginia is third with 39.6 in 11 punts.

Jim Nelson of Duke and Joe Silas of South Carolina each has kicked four for four to lead the ACC in extra point kicking. Stan Knowles of Virginia has kicked six for seven and Bob Paraedes of Clemson has booted five of seven.

Potomac State And Glenville To Meet Today

Potomac State College plays its fourth game of the football season today, meeting Glenville State College's Pioneers in a West Virginia Intercollegiate contest at Glenville, W. Va.

The Pioneers held Shepherd College to a 6-6 tie but lost to Concord College 26-7 and Fairmont State 6-0 in other conference tilts.

Coach Dana "Horse" Lough's Catamounts suffered a 20-8 defeat at the hands of West Virginia Tech and beat Salem College, 20-7 in conference games and also crushed Bainbridge Naval Training, 83-0.

The Catamounts left yesterday at 6 p. m. for Clarksburg where they remained overnight.

Potomac State's homecoming game is with Shepherd College's Rams at Keyser one week from today.

Campanella Will Undergo Another Hand Operation

BROOKLYN, Oct. 15 (AP) — Roy Campanella, veteran Brooklyn Dodgers catcher, will have to undergo another operation on his left hand.

The Dodgers made the announcement today after an unfavorable test at the New York neurological Institute. The test showed Campanella had no nerve reaction in the fourth finger of his left hand.

Campanella will undergo the new operation next Wednesday.

Dr. Samuel Schenkman said it would be an "exploratory operation" to try to discover the source of the catcher's trouble. Additional operations could be forthcoming.

The injury, suffered the first week of the season, plagued Campanella throughout the year and cut down his usefulness to the Dodgers. He hit only .207, playing spottily.

Schute's Roofers Up Lead To Three Games

Schute's Roofers took a three-game lead in the Cities Service Bowling League this week by virtue of a 2-1 win over the third place Queen City Dairy.

Baltimore Pike Fire Company held second place although dropping a pair of games to McIntyre's Grocery.

In the other match the C.&A. Gas Company lost a 2-1 decision to Super Concrete Company, throwing both teams into a tie for last place.

High scorers were G. Grapesm, Super Concrete, 204-565; I. Law, McIntyre's, 200-519; C. Felton, Schute's, 198-516; H. Wilson, Baltimore Pike, 180-496; J. Often, Queen City Dairy, 178-486 and R. Hobell, C.&A. Gas Company, 201-469. The standings:

Roy Hamey, general manager of the Phillies, said Moore was released because he was "inexperienced." Smith was manager of the Birmingham (Ala.) Barons last year and also managed other minor league clubs in the New York Yankees' farm system for the past six years.

Penn State-West Virginia Meet In East's Headliner

Duke To Host Army, Terps Play Tar Heels, Navy Battles Pitt

By WILL GRIMSLEY
The Associated Press

Southern California and Oregon, both with Rose Bowl aspirations, meet today in college football's televised feature but they shared national attention with Army and Navy and four unbeaten giants of the Big Ten conference.

Southern Cal, defeated by Texas Christian a week ago, and Oregon, winner over California, collide at Portland, Ore. The game is to be beamed by ABC starting at 4:15 p.m. (EST).

While this game and two others on the Pacific Coast lend an early but indefinite light to the possible Pasadena assignment Jan. 1, three important conference games in the Big Ten start deciding the other end of the Rose Bowl axis.

In these encounters, Purdue, plays at Wisconsin; Iowa is at Ohio State, and Illinois invades Minnesota.

The game which before the season looked like the "natural" of the year—between Notre Dame and Michigan State at South Bend—was dropped to secondary status when both teams suffered setbacks. Notre Dame bowed to Purdue, 27-14, two weeks ago while Michigan State lost to both Iowa and Wisconsin.

Army and Navy both have rugged tests.

Army Battles Duke

Army, resurging after an opening loss to South Carolina, plays Duke, sixth-ranked team, at Durham, N.C. Undefeated Navy tackles Pittsburgh at Pitt Stadium.

Pitt is playing under the charge of Athletic Director Tom Hamilton, filling in for the ailing Coach Red Dawson. Hamilton is a former Navy star and coach.

Oklahoma, the country's No. 1 team, moves into conference competition with Kansas as the first order of business.

On the Pacific Coast, UCLA, No. 3 ranked but ineligible to return to the Rose Bowl, is host to Stanford at Los Angeles while California plays Washington State at Berkeley.

W.V.U. Opposes Lions

The best game in the east brings together Penn State and West Virginia, each unbeaten. The Ivy league has Princeton at Brown, Columbia at Harvard and Cornell at Yale. Maryland, last year's national champion but once beaten, is host to North Carolina.

In the Southwest, Texas, although beaten twice, is favored over surprising Arkansas, winner over Tulsa, TCU and Baylor. Other league games have TCU at Texas A&M and SMU at Rice.

Mississippi, No. 7 nationally and rated the best in the Deep South, should score its fifth straight victory at the expense of Tulane. Other leading games have Tennessee at Alabama, Auburn at Georgia Tech and Kentucky at Florida.

Other Contests

Other games, by sections:

East — George Washington at Penn, Syracuse at Boston U., Colgate at Dartmouth, Marquette at Holy Cross, William & Mary at Rutgers.

West — Hardin-Simmons at Cincinnati, Indiana at Missouri, Michigan at Northwestern, Pregon State at Nebraska.

Southwest — Washington at Baylor, Houston at Oklahoma A&M.

Far West—Idaho at Arizona, College of the Pacific at Colorado A&M, Denver at Utah, New Mexico at Wyoming, Utah State at Montana.

Braves Obtain Crowe

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 15 (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves today took up the contract of George Crowe, the batting star of their American Association Toledo farm club.

In exchange for the lefthanded first baseman's contract, the Braves assigned outfielder Collins Morgan to Toledo.

Vikings At Ridgeley, Beall To Host Romney

Hurricane Hazel scored a clean knockout in football yesterday and as a result of the wind and rain nine scholastic contests in the tri-state area were postponed.

Coaches of the various schools last night were entertaining hopes that a majority of the games will be staged today, weather permitting.

Coach William P. Hahn conferred with Coach Hunter Maddex and they agreed to reschedule the Fort Hill-Handley High game tonight at the local stadium at 8 o'clock. The game originally was billed for last night.

There is no change in Allegany High's plans to meet Montgomery Blair High's Blazers at Silver Spring today at 2:15 o'clock. Coach Roy Lester said the Allegany squad will leave this morning at 7:30 o'clock.

Other games washed out yesterday were LaSalle at Keyser, Romney at Beall, Petersburg at Ridgeley, Moorefield at Franklin, Circleville at the West Virginia School for the Deaf (Romney), West Union at Parsons, Martinsburg at Hagerstown and Shepherdstown at Berkeley Springs.

LaSalle hopes to play in Keyser today at 2:30 o'clock. The Romney at Beall contest is reset for tonight at 8 o'clock in Frostburg. Petersburg's Vikings are rescheduled to play at Ridgeley today at 2:30.

No word was received from Franklin, Romney and Parsons as to new dates for postponed games there.

The Martinsburg at Hagerstown game is reset for November 1 or 2 while Shepherdstown will play at Berkeley Springs on Monday, October 18.

Laurel Meet Opens Today

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 15 (AP) — Brookmeade Stable scored a double victory in last year's Turf Cup Handicap and will double up again tomorrow in the race featuring the start of 16 racing days at Laurel.

Brookmeade has entered County Clare and Tritium with 11 other horses for the mile and a furlong race on the grass.

Last year's Turf Cup drew so many entries that Laurel had to run them in two sections. County Clare won the first and stablemate Sunglow the second. County Clare's outstanding victory this year was in the Boardwalk Handicap at Atlantic City.

There is plenty of strong competition for the Brookmeade pair in the race for $20,000 in added money. The field includes Iceberg II, voted the best grass horse of 1953, Stan, Bea Marony, Brown Booter, Cold Command, Hilltop II, Mr. Skip, News Again, Pasatiempo, Royal Governor and Tip II.

Sugar Robinson Plans To Start Training Monday

Will Fight Again If He Regains Condition

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, who said "the coordination isn't there any more" when he retired as undefeated middleweight champion 22 months ago, said today he would begin training Monday for a comeback.

"I have the urge to fight again, I won't make any final decision until I see how I make out in training," said Robinson at a press conference in his Harlem bar and grill.

"I feel good—I don't think I ever felt better. I would like to become the first retired champion ever to regain a title, and I hope to get a shot at middleweight champion Bobo Olson if my training works out well.

"But if I can't regain the condition that I was once so proud of, then I'll give the idea up."

In answer to questions, he said:

Needs Few Tuneups

"I'll want quite a few tuneup fights before I take on Olson, if I can get him."

"I'll fight for any man who pays me. That goes for the IBC (International Boxing Club. I'll fight only middleweights. No more light heavyweight ambitions."

"I am at heart a prize fighter. Dancing helped my legs. I weigh 157½.

"I'm only 32, not 34 as the record book lists me. That's because I used Ray Robinson's birth certificate when I started fighting. My right name is Smith."

"I beat Olson twice in the past but how I would do now remains to be seen."

"I don't know how long it will take to see if I have it or not," he added. "The decision will be up to George Gainford (manager), Harry Wiley (trainer), Dr. Vincent Nardiello, my personal physician, and myself. We'll have a round table on the matter."

Since his last fight with Joey Maxim on June 25, 1952, Robinson has toured the U.S. and Europe with his song and dance act. Robinson lost on a technical knockout in 14 rounds to Maxim, the light heavyweight champion, when he collapsed in the oppressive 103-degree heat.

Held Two Titles

Generally regarded as one of the great fighters of all time, Robinson held the welterweight title as well as the middleweight crown. He had to give up the 147-pound diadem when he won the heavier title. He posted an outstanding record of 131 victories, three defeats and two draws.

Hurricane Hazel Blows Vestment To World Record

ELMONT, N. Y., Oct. 15 (AP) — Hurricane Hazel, sweeping toward the metropolitan New York area, got the credit today for blowing Starmount Stable's Vestment to a new world record in a six furlong dash down the Widener course at Belmont Park.

The 2-year-old daughter of Pavot-Beautified was timed in 1:07 4-5 in defeating a band of maiden fillies, slicing two fifths of a second off the track mark held by five horses, and a fifth of the world standard of 1:08 set 50 years ago today at old Morris Park by Artful under 130 pounds.

Vestment, ridden by Stanley Small, won by three lengths from Lazy F Ranch's Itinerary, who led by a length and a half over Canford Stud Farms' Mohawk Valley.

Vestment had been out six times previously, placing once and third twice.

Second choice with the poor crowd of 12,457, Vestment returned mutuels of $13.50, $7.20 and $5.80. Itinerary paid $33.20 and $17.60 and Miss Nell was $10.30 to show.

Don Saylor Writes AHS Foes Unbeaten • • • Richards Won Eight Brennan In Europe

By C. V. BURNS

DON SAYLOR, newly appointed golf professional at Andrews Air Force Base, sends the following interesting letter:

Dear Mr. Burns:

"I wanted to drop you a note and let you know that I have been appointed as head golf professional at Andrews Air Force Base in Washington, D. C. The course is only three years old and I will be the first civilian golf pro ever employed there. I will officially take over my duties at the golf club on October 25.

"As you know, I have been with Max Elbin for three years at Burning Tree Club (Bethesda) and it has been a wonderful experience for me.

"I had the privilege of giving Vice President Nixon his first golf lesson at Burning Tree, and Max and I have a photo in the shop of the President signed: For Max Elbin and Don Saylor, with best wishes, Dwight D. Eisenhower.

"It certainly is wonderful when two boys from a small town can associate, through golf, with the President, Vice President, Senate, Congress and the finest people in the country. It is also unusual that Cumberland has turned out as many golf professionals in the last few years, considering the population and the very limited golf facilities in the city.

"I wish someone in Cumberland would realize the rapid progress in golf as a sport, socially, for business purposes, and a game people can play from age 9 to 90. The number of golf courses being built in the country today to take care of the average office clerk, bus driver, milk man, and the man on the street is amazing. Can't someone build a nice nine-hole golf course in Cumberland to accommodate these type of people? It can certainly be operated on a very profitable basis."

THREE of the teams yet to be met by Allegany High's Campers are undefeated.

Montgomery Blair is 3-0 while Martinsburg and Elkins have racked up five wins each.

Elkins has whipped Bellington, Victory and Roosevelt Wilson, both of Clarksburg, Buckhannon and Morgantown.

The Campers play in Elkins November 5.

TOMMY Richards, former Beall High ace and Frostburg Demons' twirler, who was signed by the Chicago White Sox last fall and sent to their "farm" team in the Mississippi-Ohio Valley League, a Class D circuit, wound up the 1954 campaign with an 8-5 record for Dubuque, Iowa.

Richards, who also played third base, the outfield and was used in pinch-hitting roles, closed the regular season with a five-game winning streak and his batting average was around the .280 mark.

ENORDO "Moose" Arnone, the big southpaw who twirled Beall High to several Bi-State Conference championships, finished the 1954 campaign with Pine Bluff, the Baltimore Orioles' "farm" in the Class C Cotton States League. "Moose" started the season with York in the Piedmont League. He was troubled with a sore arm at Pine Bluff but he believes it will respond to treatment during the winter months.

ONE of the top battles of the 1954 scholastic football season in Western Pennsylvania is set for tonight at Windber Stadium where two undefeated elevens — Conemaugh Township and Windber — will clash.

Conemaugh has knocked off Lewistown, 25-7, Boswell 40-0, Ferndale 33-14, Ebensburg 33-6 and Westmont 25-0. Windber, which met LaSalle, Penn Avenue and Fort Hill in bygone years, has belted out Shade Township 33-7, Altoona High 27-2, North Cambria 21-0, Johnstown's Trojans 14-7 and Portage 49-13.

The powerful Conemaugh Township team plays at Bedford next Friday night.

EDDIE BRENNAN general manager of the Monmouth Park (N.J.) Jockey Club, who served as racing secretary of the Cumberland Fair Association for 20 years, is now on an extended European tour, according to G. Barker Seeley, publicity director of the New Jersey track.

Brennan's itinerary includes visits to the leading thoroughbred race tracks and many of the breeding farms in France, Italy, England and Ireland. Eddie also hopes to make short trips to both Spain and Portugal.

MONTGOMERY Junior College rolled to its 13th consecutive football victory over the past weekend, beating Bainbridge Navy Training Station, 33-7. Potomac State beat the Sailors, 83-0.

"Horse" Lough's Catamounts piled up 150 points while holding Montgomery teams scoreless in four games from 1948 through 1951. The scores were 26-0, 37-0, 55-0 and 32-0.

WALTER Holke, 62, former major league first baseman, who died Tuesday in a St. Louis hospital, played here with the Boston Braves against the Detroit Tigers in an exhibition game at South End Park in 1919. Walter "Rabbit" Maranville and "Hank Gowdy were with the same Boston team.

HOLKE played with the Giants, Phillies, Braves and Cincinnati.

He was with the Giants in the 1917 World Series and handled 43 chances during the 26-inning 1-1 tie game between Brooklyn and Boston in 1920.

Yanks Purchase Elston Howard

Catcher Voted MVP In International Loop

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (INS) — The New York Yankees announced today the purchase of Elston Howard, brilliant negro catching prospect, and three other players from their minor league farm clubs.

Howard, named the most valuable player in the International League last season when he hit .331 for Toronto and drove in 108 runs in 138 games, would be the first of his race ever to wear a Yankee uniform if he sticks with the club.

Also purchased were righthanded pitchers Ed Cereghino (11-13) and Tom Sturdivant (8-9) from Kansas City of the American Association and third baseman Leon (Buddy) Carter (.288) from Binghamton of the Class A Eastern League. Kansas City also was the owner of record of Howard's contract, having optioned him to Toronto.

To make room for the new players within the player limit of 40 plus returned servicemen, the Yankees sold outfielder Art Schult and pitcher Al Cicotte to Kansas City.

General Manager George Weiss called today's transactions "the first big step in strengthening the Yankees." The acquisition of Howard gives the Yankees six catchers, indicating that one or more may be used in trades to improve other positions.

Philadelphia's 'Last-Minute' Men Hope To Save Athletics

Group Matches Offer Of Johnson; Latter Appears Bewildered

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15 (AP)—A band of "last-minute" men plunked their check books on the line today and joined a cross-country tug-of-war with Chicago's Arnold Johnson for the suddenly much sought after Philadelphia Athletics franchise.

Through a spokesman, 10 prominent Philadelphia businessmen announced they had pledged sufficient cash to keep the Athletics in Philadelphia but said the details of their offer would have to be worked out over the coming weekend.

That time element would take matters right down to the 11 a.m. EST, deadline set by Will Harridge, American League president, for a final stand by Roy Mack, the A's executive vice president and key figure in the situation.

In Chicago, Johnson — the baseball-minded financier who thought he practically bought the ball club at an American League meeting last tuesday — said he still has hopes of purchasing the franchise he wants to transfer to Kansas City.

Johnson Bewildered

Johnson said at this point he was a little bewildered but thought it was time he issued "a statement of position." In that statement, Johnson said he was prepared to give Roy Mack a five-year contract and a stock interest in the A's organization at Kansas City. Johnson also said he had promised to give Roy's son, Connie Mack 3d, a job with the club.

Jack Rensel, the Philadelphia syndicate's spokesman, said the 10 members had matched the $3,375,000 offer made by Johnson for the A's franchise.

While Rensel refused to disclose the names of those in the group, reporters on the scene were able to identify the following as they emerged from today's meeting:

Men Are Identified

Paul Harron, president of radio station WIBG; Barney Fischer, oil and automobile industrialist of Lower Merion Township, Pa.; Arthur Gallagher, Philadelphia trucking firm executive and formerly nationally known oarsman; William Anderson, heating and plumbing contractor; Arthur Rosenberg, food chain executive; Joseph Leibman, clothier; Leonard Strick, truck-trailor manufacturer; and Isadore Sley, parking lot company operator.

Rensel issued the following statement after the breakup of today's meeting:

"A group of Philadelphia businessmen is negotiating with Mr. Roy Mack and the Mack family and negotiations are still active and no definite decision will be made until after the weekend, at which time it is hoped a meeting of the minds will be reached.

"Mr. Roy Mack's daughter is being married tomorrow and if a decision is reached before then, we shall notify the press.

Group Vitally Interested

"Needless to say, all of the people involved are responsible citizens of Philadelphia and are vitally interested in keeping the Athletics in Philadelphia. I am not at liberty in revealing the names of the parties involved."

A spokesman, who attended the meeting, said that negotiations had been conducted with the entire Mack family—Roy, his brother, Earle, and their father, Connie Mack Sr.—and that all the Macks "were happy."

Earlier, another spokesman came out of the meeting and told newsmen that there was enough money represented in the board room of the Tradesman's Land Title and Trust Company for the meeting to buy the club. The spokesman added that the group was "over-subscribed" and might have to turn some money back.

This spokesman also went as far as to say the syndicate had enough money to buy four "good ball players" and to hire a top general manager and field manager.

All of the information obtainable from the meeting room was strictly on an individual basis and there were conflicting reports as to the progress being made.

Campanella Will Undergo Another Hand Operation

BROOKLYN, Oct. 15 (AP) — Roy Campanella, veteran Brooklyn Dodgers catcher, will have to undergo another operation on his left hand.

The Dodgers made the announcement today after an unfavorable test at the New York neurological Institute. The test showed Campanella had no nerve reaction in the fourth finger of his left hand.

Campanella will undergo the new operation next Wednesday.

Dr. Samuel Schenkman said it would be an "exploratory operation" to try to discover the source of the catcher's trouble. Additional operations could be forthcoming.

The injury, suffered the first week of the season, plagued Campanella throughout the year and cut down his usefulness to the Dodgers. He hit only .207, playing spottily.

Penn State-West Virginia Meet In East's Headliner

Duke To Host Army, Terps Play Tar Heels, Navy Battles Pitt

By WILL GRIMSLEY
The Associated Press

Southern California and Oregon, both with Rose Bowl aspirations, meet today in college football's televised feature but they shared national attention with Army and Navy and four unbeaten giants of the Big Ten conference.

Southern Cal, defeated by Texas Christian a week ago, and Oregon, winner over California, collide at Portland, Ore. The game is to be beamed by ABC starting at 4:15 p.m. (EST).

While this game and two others on the Pacific Coast lend an early but indefinite light to the possible Pasadena assignment Jan. 1, three important conference games in the Big Ten start deciding the other end of the Rose Bowl axis.

In these encounters, Purdue, plays at Wisconsin; Iowa is at Ohio State, and Illinois invades Minnesota.

The game which before the season looked like the "natural" of the year—between Notre Dame and Michigan State at South Bend—was dropped to secondary status when both teams suffered setbacks. Notre Dame bowed to Purdue, 27-14, two weeks ago while Michigan State lost to both Iowa and Wisconsin.

Army and Navy both have rugged tests.

Army Battles Duke

Army, resurging after an opening loss to South Carolina, plays Duke, sixth-ranked team, at Durham, N.C. Undefeated Navy tackles Pittsburgh at Pitt Stadium.

Pitt is playing under the charge of Athletic Director Tom Hamilton, filling in for the ailing Coach Red Dawson. Hamilton is a former Navy star and coach.

Oklahoma, the country's No. 1 team, moves into conference competition with Kansas as the first order of business.

On the Pacific Coast, UCLA, No. 3 ranked but ineligible to return to the Rose Bowl, is host to Stanford at Los Angeles while California plays Washington State at Berkeley.

W.V.U. Opposes Lions

The best game in the east brings together Penn State and West Virginia, each unbeaten. The Ivy league has Princeton at Brown, Columbia at Harvard and Cornell at Yale. Maryland, last year's national champion but once beaten, is host to North Carolina.

In the Southwest, Texas, although beaten twice, is favored over surprising Arkansas, winner over Tulsa, TCU and Baylor. Other league games have TCU at Texas A&M and SMU at Rice.

Mississippi, No. 7 nationally and rated the best in the Deep South, should score its fifth straight victory at the expense of Tulane. Other leading games have Tennessee at Alabama, Auburn at Georgia Tech and Kentucky at Florida.

Other Contests

Other games, by sections:

East — George Washington at Penn, Syracuse at Boston U., Colgate at Dartmouth, Marquette at Holy Cross, William & Mary at Rutgers.

West — Hardin-Simmons at Cincinnati, Indiana at Missouri, Michigan at Northwestern, Pregon State at Nebraska.

Far West—Idaho at Arizona, College of the Pacific at Colorado A&M, Denver at Utah, New Mexico at Wyoming, Utah State at Montana.

Braves Obtain Crowe

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 15 (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves today took up the contract of George Crowe, the batting star of their American Association Toledo farm club.

In exchange for the lefthanded first baseman's contract, the Braves assigned outfielder Collins Morgan to Toledo.

Laurel Meet Opens Today

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 15 (AP) — Brookmeade Stable scored a double victory in last year's Turf Cup Handicap and will double up again tomorrow in the race featuring the start of 16 racing days at Laurel.

Brookmeade has entered County Clare and Tritium with 11 other horses for the mile and a furlong race on the grass.

Last year's Turf Cup drew so many entries that Laurel had to run them in two sections. County Clare won the first and stablemate Sunglow the second. County Clare's outstanding victory this year was in the Boardwalk Handicap at Atlantic City.

There is plenty of strong competition for the Brookmeade pair in the race for $20,000 in added money. The field includes Iceberg II, voted the best grass horse of 1953, Stan, Bea Marony, Brown Booter, Cold Command, Hilltop II, Mr. Skip, News Again, Pasatiempo, Royal Governor and Tip II.

Sugar Robinson Plans To Start Training Monday

Will Fight Again If He Regains Condition

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, who said "the coordination isn't there any more" when he retired as undefeated middleweight champion 22 months ago, said today he would begin training Monday for a comeback.

"I have the urge to fight again, I won't make any final decision until I see how I make out in training," said Robinson at a press conference in his Harlem bar and grill.

"I feel good—I don't think I ever felt better. I would like to become the first retired champion ever to regain a title, and I hope to get a shot at middleweight champion Bobo Olson if my training works out well.

"But if I can't regain the condition that I was once so proud of, then I'll give the idea up."

In answer to questions, he said:

Needs Few Tuneups

"I'll want quite a few tuneup fights before I take on Olson, if I can get him."

"I'll fight for any man who pays me. That goes for the IBC (International Boxing Club. I'll fight only middleweights. No more light heavyweight ambitions."

"I am at heart a prize fighter. Dancing helped my legs. I weigh 157½.

"I'm only 32, not 34 as the record book lists me. That's because I used Ray Robinson's birth certificate when I started fighting. My right name is Smith."

"I beat Olson twice in the past but how I would do now remains to be seen."

"I don't know how long it will take to see if I have it or not," he added. "The decision will be up to George Gainford (manager), Harry Wiley (trainer), Dr. Vincent Nardiello, my personal physician, and myself. We'll have a round table on the matter."

Since his last fight with Joey Maxim on June 25, 1952, Robinson has toured the U.S. and Europe with his song and dance act. Robinson lost on a technical knockout in 14 rounds to Maxim, the light heavyweight champion, when he collapsed in the oppressive 103-degree heat.

Held Two Titles

Generally regarded as one of the great fighters of all time, Robinson held the welterweight title as well as the middleweight crown. He had to give up the 147-pound diadem when he won the heavier title. He posted an outstanding record of 131 victories, three defeats and two draws.

Hurricane Hazel Blows Vestment To World Record

ELMONT, N. Y., Oct. 15 (AP) — Hurricane Hazel, sweeping toward the metropolitan New York area, got the credit today for blowing Starmount Stable's Vestment to a new world record in a six furlong dash down the Widener course at Belmont Park.

The 2-year-old daughter of Pavot-Beautified was timed in 1:07 4-5 in defeating a band of maiden fillies, slicing two fifths of a second off the track mark held by five horses, and a fifth of the world standard of 1:08 set 50 years ago today at old Morris Park by Artful under 130 pounds.

Vestment, ridden by Stanley Small, won by three lengths from Lazy F Ranch's Itinerary, who led by a length and a half over Canford Stud Farms' Mohawk Valley.

Vestment had been out six times previously, placing once and third twice.

Second choice with the poor crowd of 12,457, Vestment returned mutuels of $13.50, $7.20 and $5.80. Itinerary paid $33.20 and $17.60 and Miss Nell was $10.30 to show.

Lions Batting 1.000

DETROIT — In three championship playoffs for the National Football League title, Detroit remains unbeaten. The Lions defeated New York, 26-7 in 1935, downed Cleveland 17-7 in 1952 and conquered Cleveland again in 1953, 17-16.

Don Saylor Writes AHS Foes Unbeaten

Richards Won Eight Brennan In Europe

By C. V. BURNS

DON SAYLOR, newly appointed golf professional at Andrews Air Force Base, sends the following interesting letter:

Dear Mr. Burns:

"I wanted to drop you a note and let you know that I have been appointed as head golf professional at Andrews Air Force Base in Washington, D. C. The course is only three years old and I will be the first civilian golf pro ever employed there. I will officially take over my duties at the golf club on October 25.

"As you know, I have been with Max Elbin for three years at Burning Tree Club (Bethesda) and it has been a wonderful experience for me.

"I had the privilege of giving Vice President Nixon his first golf lesson at Burning Tree, and Max and I have a photo in the shop of the President signed: For Max Elbin and Don Saylor, with best wishes, Dwight D. Eisenhower.

"It certainly is wonderful when two boys from a small town can associate, through golf, with the President, Vice President, Senate, Congress and the finest people in the country. It is also unusual that Cumberland has turned out as many golf professionals in the last few years, considering the population and the very limited golf facilities in the city.

"I wish someone in Cumberland would realize the rapid progress in golf as a sport, socially, for business purposes, and a game people can play from age 9 to 90. The number of golf courses being built in the country today to take care of the average office clerk, bus driver, milk man, and the man on the street is amazing. Can't someone build a nice nine-hole golf course in Cumberland to accommodate these type of people? It can certainly be operated on a very profitable basis."

THREE of the teams yet to be met by Allegany High's Campers are undefeated.

Montgomery Blair is 3-0 while Martinsburg and Elkins have racked up five wins each.

Elkins has whipped Bellington, Victory and Kooseveit Wilson, both of Clarksburg, Buckhannon and Morgantown.

The Campers play in Elkins November 5.

TOMMY Richards, former Beall High ace and Frostburg Demons' twirler, who was signed by the Chicago White Sox last fall and sent to their "farm" team in the Mississippi-Ohio Valley League, a Class D circuit, wound up the 1954 campaign with an 8-5 record for Dubuque, Iowa.

Richards, who also played third base, the outfield and was used in pinch-hitting roles, closed the regular season with a five-game winning streak and his batting average was around the .280 mark.

ENORDO "Moose" Arnone, the big southpaw who twirled Beall High to several Bi-State Conference championships, finished the 1954 campaign with Pine Bluff, the Baltimore Orioles' "farm" in the Class C Cotton States League. "Moose" started the season with York in the Piedmont League. He was troubled with a sore arm at Pine Bluff but he believes it will respond to treatment during the winter months.

ONE of the top battles of the 1954 scholastic football season in Western Pennsylvania is set for tonight at Windber Stadium where two undefeated elevens — Conemaugh Township and Windber — will clash.

Conemaugh has knocked off Lewistown, 25-7, Boswell 40-0, Ferndale 33-14, Ebensburg 33-6 and Westmont 25-0. Windber, which met LaSalle, Penn Avenue and Fort Hill in bygone years, has belted out Shade Township 33-7, Altoona High 27-2, North Cambria 21-0, Johnstown's Trojans 14-7 and Portage 49-13.

The powerful Conemaugh Township team plays at Bedford next Friday night.

EDDIE BRENNAN general manager of the Monmouth Park (N.J.) Jockey Club, who served as racing secretary of the Cumberland Fair Association for 20 years, is now on an extended European tour, according to G. Barker Seeley, publicity director of the New Jersey track.

Brennan's itinerary includes visits to the leading thoroughbred race tracks and many of the breeding farms in France, Italy, England and Ireland. Eddie also hopes to make short trips to both Spain and Portugal.

MONTGOMERY Junior College rolled to its 13th consecutive football victory over the past weekend, beating Bainbridge Navy Training Station, 33-7. Potomac State beat the Sailors, 83-0.

"Horse" Lough's Catamounts piled up 150 points while holding Montgomery teams scoreless in four games from 1948 through 1951. The scores were 26-0, 37-0, 55-0 and 32-0.

WALTER Holke, 62, former major league first baseman, who died Tuesday in a St. Louis hospital, played here with the Boston Braves against the Detroit Tigers in an exhibition game at South End Park in 1919. Walter "Rabbit" Maranville and "Hank Gowdy were with the same Boston team.

HOLKE played with the Giants, Phillies, Braves and Cincinnati.

He was with the Giants in the 1917 World Series and handled 43 chances during the 26-inning 1-1 tie game between Brooklyn and Boston in 1920.

Yanks Purchase Elston Howard

Catcher Voted MVP In International Loop

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (INS) — The New York Yankees announced today the purchase of Elston Howard, brilliant negro catching prospect, and three other players from their minor league farm clubs.

Howard, named the most valuable player in the International League last season when he hit .331 for Toronto and drove in 108 runs in 138 games, would be the first of his race ever to wear a Yankee uniform if he sticks with the club.

Also purchased were righthanded pitchers Ed Cereghino (11-13) and Tom Sturdivant (8-9) from Kansas City of the American Association and third baseman Leon (Buddy) Carter (.288) from Binghamton of the Class A Eastern League. Kansas City also was the owner of record of Howard's contract, having optioned him to Toronto.

To make room for the new players within the player limit of 40 plus returned servicemen, the Yankees sold outfielder Art Schult and pitcher Al Cicotte to Kansas City.

General Manager George Weiss called today's transactions "the first big step in strengthening the Yankees." The acquisition of Howard gives the Yankees six catchers, indicating that one or more may be used in trades to improve other positions.

all positions on both local and long distance boards.

Haschert said all available operators were on hand to operate the switchboards, but that the heavy traffic was causing some delay in handling calls.

Shortly after 7 p. m., a cable failure put some 600 telephones serving the Frederick Street and Bedford Road area out of service.

Within a short time, repair crews located the trouble—a cracked sheath had allowed moisture to get into the big cable—and reported service would be restored by morning.

Some individual lines which parted when struck by falling trees will be repaired today.

Sandbag Office

In Hagerstown, some 500 phones were reported out of order as a result of high winds.

Officials said service was generally good in Oakland, Frostburg, Kitzmiller and Accident.

But in Friendsville, telephone workers were sandbagging the central office as the Youghiogheny River went on a rampage.

All dial offices in the area were being manned in case trouble hit.

Emergency crews were on hand at the C & A Gas Company headquarters here, and officials said one crew had been dispatched to Bloomington, where a gas line had washed out.

Repair crews will be on hand to meet any emergency, officials said.

Several Towns

p.m., water broke through above the town at a point known as the headgates to the old mill race.

Water swept over Kitzmiller's beautiful botanical gardens, down through the residential and business areas and reached the steps of the Methodist Church on Main Street. Several business men called the News from Kitzmiller and reported on the situation. They said, "It looks as if we are going to need help when this thing is over."

At Piedmont, W.Va., also on the Potomac, several score families were evacuated from the Paxton and Water streets areas. Two feet of water swept through Ashfield Street, the town's main business area. Stores were flooded and much damage was reported.

Piedmont officials at 8 o'clock last night appealed to Westernport, directly across the river, for volunteers to help evacuate families and fight the rising tide.

Westernport Lends A Hand

Westernport, busy with its own problems from the river and surging Georges Creek, sent some men to help and the situation was handled in time to protect life and property as far as possible.

In Westernport, Waverly Street Bridge was closed to traffic. Washington Street bridge was being watched as water approached within a couple of feet of the deck. A swinging bridge between Brophytown and Franklin was swept away and braces from another bridge nearby were washed out and the bridge closed.

Residents in the Westernport Hill area, Oak View, Greene's Addition and Church Street complained of water in basements and first floors. Some of this was rain water and some was flash floods from neighboring hillsides.

Volunteer firemen at both Westernport and Piedmont were all alerted and on duty helping to cope with the emergency. At the home of Kelly Mansfield Post 52, American Legion, in Piedmont, an emergency shelter and flood headquarters was set up about 8 o'clock last night.

Oakland Inundated

At Oakland, water from Wilson Creek, normally a mild little stream, ran wild yesterday afternoon and flooded the downtown business section. Practically every business house in downtown Oakland suffered some water damage. Water reached a depth of three feet on Second Street and adjoining thoroughfares.

The National Guard at Oakland was activated and on duty. The Red Cross set up emergency quarters and was prepared to render any assistance necessary.

Meyersdale, Pa., was also hit by the floods. Officials of Meyersdale said water from the Castleman River and Flagherty Creek inundated a wide area, including Large Street and the Meyersdale fairgrounds. A number of families were evacuated and the Red Cross branch, veterans organizations and volunteer firemen, along with other volunteers were alerted and on duty.

Meyersdale officials called Cumberland city officials in an effort to find emergency pumping equipment, needed to help pump out flooded homes and basements.

Meyersdale Cut Off

The entire area around Meyersdale was affected as streams swept away roadbeds and flooded highways. At one period yesterday afternoon and last night, Meyersdale was isolated and travel to and from the town was almost impossible.

At 2 p. m. yesterday, water washed out the main natural gas line in one section and a large portion of the community was without heat or gas with which to cook.

Last night, the situation seemed to have improved in Meyersdale and points in that area as rain stopped falling. Only the miserable task of cleanup remained.

In the Georges Creek region from Frostburg to Westernport, every county community had a flood experience.

At Frostburg from the foot of Grant Street to Shaft and Ocean areas, there was about a foot of water blocking Route 36.

Lonaconing Flooded

At Lonaconing, a run in the Jackson Street area left its banks, and Georges Creek went on a rampage. Water swept into many homes and business houses. In some sections bridges were covered. Georges Creek was termed at flood crest by 6 p. m. in Lonaconing.

In the Beechwood area water flooded roads and homes. A coal truck broke through a bridge at Beechwood, but the driver was not hurt, and volunteers were able to extricate the truck with not too much difficulty. The bridge was badly damaged.

Dayton Cuthbertson, 30, had a narrow escape when he was caught in the flood waters of Georges Creek. He managed to cling to the banks until help arrived. Firemen tossed him a rope but he was too weak to help himself. A couple of volunteer firemen managed to reach him and remove him from the "neck-deep' water. He suffered cuts about his head and shoulders.

At Eichhorn's business place, sandbags were placed to keep the water out and other businessmen took similar emergency measures. The VFW post at Lonaconing had its home open as a shelter and members stood by on an alert basis to help if and where needed.

Members of Goodwill Fire Company were on duty most of the afternoon and throughout the night.

Barton Also Hit

Barton Volunteer firemen got their first call for assistance at 1:15 p. m. yesterday, were still busy last night and were expecting to remain on the job all night. Today they were expecting to get many calls to pump out flooded basements.

The first call came from the Dogwood section of Barton, where roads washed out as the water rushed off the hillsides. Roads in Barton that were impassable last night were Moore's Hollow Road, Bartlett Run Road and Laurel Run Road.

The Barton volunteers, 34 of them regular members of the department and some 20 other citizens, piled sandbags along the main street of the town to protect business houses there.

Several light poles were washed out and the electric current went ont in Barton about 8 o'clock last night.

Four families in the Temperance Row section had to be evacuated by the firemen, led by Chief Calvin G. Lamberson, when George's Creek got out of its banks at one point.

At the railroad bridge in Pekin much of the fill was washed out. The Barton firemen placed sandbags there to keep the water off State Route 36.

Meanwhile, David E. Kirk, president of the Allegany-Garrett County Volunteer Firemen's Association, said that virtually every fire company in the association had its men on the job lending assistance to friends and neighbors or awaiting calls for help.

At Locust Grove, several families along Wills Creek were evacuated, and LaVale Volunteer Firemen were on duty at LaVale Fire Hall to watch that and adjacent areas. Shelter was provided for those seeking it.

During the early afternoon, most Cumberlanders were concerned about the hurricane hitting here. During the afternoon gales reached a velocity of about 30 miles an hour but no damage was reported. These gales were considered by weathermen as a front of the hurricane.

As it became evident that Hurricane Hazel had passed up this area, concern over floods increased.

Flash Floods, High Winds Batter Tri-State

Oldtown Road Quarry Ordered Sold At Auction

The Sensabaugh stone quarry, located about one and one-half miles east of the city limits along the Oldtown Road, will be sold at public auction Saturday, November 6, at 10 a. m., along with personal property, quarry equipment, trucks, bulldozers and other motor equipment.

This property covers approximately 170 acres in the vicinity of the historic Jane Frazier House.

G. C. Sensabaugh, Inc., has operated the stone quarry since 1946. For the past several years it has been virtually inoperative.

It is understood that the quarry has a history dating back more than 100 years. Some local historians say that some of the stone used in the construction of the old C & O Canal was taken from this quarry. The canal was opened to the public in 1850.

The auction will be conducted on the quarry site. Supplemental chattel mortgages held on the property have been assigned to George R. Hughes, local attorney for foreclosure, and the sale has been ordered.

Local Library Receives Book On Poetry Day

The Cumberland Free Public Library yesterday received a new book in observance of National Poetry Day.

The book, "An Editor Looks At Poetry," by Stanley A. Coblentz was given to the library by Mrs. Margielea Stonestreet See, who was Maryland chairman for the National Poetry Day committee.

In observance of National Poetry Day, Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian, arranged a special display featuring books of poetry. Included is Coblentz's book, described as a guide book to poetic technique by the editor of Wings, a quarterly of verse.

Woman, Rescuer May Be Victims Of Flash Flood

Reading, Pa., Man Survives Ordeal

A Reading, Pa., woman and a Glade City, Pa., man who attempted to rescue her were reported swept away by the swollen waters of a small stream near Meyersdale, Pa., last night.

Her 24-year-old husband, identified by Meyersdale Community Hospital as Lester Chilton, survived the flood waters.

Chilton, who clung to a utility pole when the car in which he and his wife were riding was swept off the road, was admitted to the hospital last night in a state of shock.

X-rays were being taken to determine the extent of his injuries.

It was reported that Chilton and his wife were on their way to visit his aunt in Meyersdale when their car was marooned by rising waters at Glade City, on the outskirts of Meyersdale.

A rescue party, it was reported, threw a line to the trapped couple. As Mrs. Chilton was being pulled to safety, the line snapped and allowed her to be washed downstream.

One of the rescue party, tentatively identified as Edward Hostetler, of Glade City, leaped into the raging waters to rescue her and was swept away.

New Jersey Man Faces Old Charge

Edward Pavlisko, formerly of Newark, N.J., is scheduled for trial before Associate Judge George Henderson in Allegany County Circuit Court at 9:15 a.m. today on a 1948 charge of attempted robbery.

A criminal information was filed yesterday in court charging that Pavlisko attempted to rob Roscoe M. McElfish, an A&P store employe, on January 12, 1948. Six other New Jersey men were tried on similar charges in February, 1948.

Pavlisko was not caught here. Apprehended later on another charge he has been serving time in the New Jersey penitentiary. He was turned over yesterday to Deputy Sheriffs Edgar M. Lewis and Louis T. Helman upon his release from the penitentiary in New Jersey.

Penn Avenue PTA To Have Cub Pack

At the first meeting of the Pennsylvania Avenue Parent-Teacher Association it was decided to sponsor a cub pack for Boy Scouts.

Mrs. JoAnn Rice reported on the Summer Conference at College Park. Home Room mothers decided that each parent may contribute 25 cents per year for buying refreshments for the meetings.

Members of the faculty were introduced by the principal, Miss Lulu M. Blonsky.

Tucker County Hard Hit By Raging Flood

Parsons And Other Towns Marooned

Tucker County, W.Va., felt the impact of continual rains and several towns were flooded yesterday as water from the Blackfork, Shavers Fork and Cheat River ran riot.

Late last night, about half the population in Parsons had been evacuated as three and four feet of muddy water swept through the streets. The town was without power and parts of the town and adjacent areas had no telephone communications.

Volunteer firemen and other emergency workers were hard pressed in their task of getting people out of their homes to higher ground Many residents in Parsons as elsewhere threw their homes open in a mass spontaneous evacuation program.

St. George, Hambleton, Holly Meadows and other county towns were marooned and many families were caught in the flood waters. At Porterwood the swirling flood washed out the area's main natural gas line, cutting off the supply of fuel for heat and cooking.

At Hendricks, 75 families were evacuated and US 219 near Parsons was inundated and blocked. Bridges in several areas were covered with water and impassable.

At Parsons, the Dodridge High School football team of West Union, there to play Parsons High School, was marooned. They were housed last night in the public shelter opened in Parsons Grade School. The football game was postponed indefinitely.

Parsons business people and residents not already hit by the flood waters were in imminent danger of having everything swept away. Water in Shaver Fork at the old pulp mill dike was coming over top of the dike at 11 p.m. and residents feared the dike could not hold. If the dike broke, Parsons would be literally swept off the top of the mountain.

At least two people experienced narrow escapes in the flood yesterday afternoon. While driving along the highway a quarter mile from Hendricks, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Bowman of Dry Fork were nearly drowned when water from a raging stream suddenly swept their car about 30 feet off the road. They had to stand in the car for several minutes before they could escape.

Several Towns

p.m., water broke through above the town at a point known as the headgates to the old mill race.

Water swept over Kitzmiller's beautiful botanical gardens, down through the residential and business areas and reached the steps of the Methodist Church on Main Street. Several business men called the News from Kitzmiller and reported on the situation. They said, "It looks as if we are going to need help when this thing is over."

At Piedmont, W.Va., also on the Potomac, several score families were evacuated from the Paxton and Water streets areas. Two feet of water swept through Ashfield Street, the town's main business area. Stores were flooded and much damage was reported.

Piedmont officials at 8 o'clock last night appealed to Westernport, directly across the river, for volunteers to help evacuate families and fight the rising tide.

Westernport Lends A Hand

Westernport, busy with its own problems from the river and surging Georges Creek, sent some men to help and the situation was handled in time to protect life and property as far as possible.

In Westernport, Waverly Street Bridge was closed to traffic. Washington Street bridge was being watched as water approached within a couple of feet of the deck. A swinging bridge between Brophytown and Franklin was swept away and braces from another bridge nearby were washed out and the bridge closed.

Residents in the Westernport Hill area, Oak View, Greene's Addition and Church Street complained of water in basements and first floors. Some of this was rain water and some was flash floods from neighboring hillsides.

Volunteer firemen at both Westernport and Piedmont were all alerted and on duty helping to cope with the emergency. At the home of Kelly Mansfield Post 52, American Legion, in Piedmont, an emergency shelter and flood headquarters was set up about 8 o'clock last night.

Oakland Inundated

At Oakland, water from Wilson Creek, normally a mild little stream, ran wild yesterday afternoon and flooded the downtown business section. Practically every business house in downtown Oakland suffered some water damage. Water reached a depth of three feet on Second Street and adjoining thoroughfares.

The National Guard at Oakland was activated and on duty. The Red Cross set up emergency quarters and was prepared to render any assistance necessary.

Meyersdale, Pa., was also hit by the floods. Officials of Meyersdale said water from the Castleman River and Flagherty Creek inundated a wide area, including Large Street and the Meyersdale fairgrounds. A number of families were evacuated and the Red Cross branch, veterans organizations and volunteer firemen, along with other volunteers were alerted and on duty.

Meyersdale officials called Cumberland city officials in an effort to find emergency pumping equipment, needed to help pump out flooded homes and basements.

Meyersdale Cut Off

The entire area around Meyersdale was affected as streams swept away roadbeds and flooded highways. At one period yesterday afternoon and last night, Meyersdale was isolated and travel to and from the town was almost impossible.

At 2 p. m. yesterday, water washed out the main natural gas line in one section and a large portion of the community was without heat or gas with which to cook.

Last night, the situation seemed to have improved in Meyersdale and points in that area as rain stopped falling. Only the miserable task of cleanup remained.

In the Georges Creek region from Frostburg to Westernport, every county community had a flood experience.

At Frostburg from the foot of Grant Street to Shaft and Ocean areas, there was about a foot of water blocking Route 36.

Lonaconing Flooded

At Lonaconing, a run in the Jackson Street area left its banks, and Georges Creek went on a rampage. Water swept into many homes and business houses. In some sections bridges were covered. Georges Creek was termed at flood crest by 6 p. m. in Lonaconing.

In the Beechwood area water flooded roads and homes. A coal truck broke through a bridge at Beechwood, but the driver was not hurt, and volunteers were able to extricate the truck with not too much difficulty. The bridge was badly damaged.

Dayton Cuthbertson, 30, had a narrow escape when he was caught in the flood waters of Georges Creek. He managed to cling to the banks until help arrived. Firemen tossed him a rope but he was too weak to help himself. A couple of volunteer firemen managed to reach him and remove him from the "neck-deep" water. He suffered cuts about his head and shoulders.

At Eichhorn's business place, sandbags were placed to keep the water out and other businessmen took similar emergency measures. The VFW post at Lonaconing had its home open as a shelter and members stood by on an alert basis to help if and where needed.

Members of Goodwill Fire Company were on duty most of the afternoon and throughout the night.

Barton Also Hit

Barton Volunteer firemen got their first call for assistance at 1:15 p. m. yesterday, were still busy last night and were expecting to remain on the job all night. Today they were expecting to get many calls to pump out flooded basements.

The first call came from the Dogwood section of Barton, where roads washed out as the water rushed off the hillsides. Roads in Barton that were impassable last night were Moore's Hollow Road, Bartlett Run Road and Laurel Run Road.

The Barton volunteers, 34 of them regular members of the department and some 20 other citizens, piled sandbags along the main street of the town to protect business houses there.

Several light poles were washed out and the electric current went ont in Barton about 8 o'clock last night.

Four families in the Temperance Row section had to be evacuated by the firemen, led by Chief Calvin G. Lamberson, when George's Creek got out of its banks at one point.

At the railroad bridge in Pekin much of the fill was washed out. The Barton firemen placed sandbags there to keep the water off State Route 36.

Meanwhile, David E. Kirk, president of the Allegany-Garrett County Volunteer Firemen's Association, said that virtually every fire company in the association had its men on the job lending assistance to friends and neighbors or awaiting calls for help.

At Locust Grove, several families along Wills Creek were evacuated, and LaVale Volunteer Firemen were on duty at LaVale Fire Hall to watch that and adjacent areas. Shelter was provided for those seeking it.

During the early afternoon, most Cumberlanders were concerned about the hurricane hitting here. During the afternoon gales reached a velocity of about 30 miles an hour but no damage was reported. These gales were considered by weathermen as a front of the hurricane.

As it became evident that Hurricane Hazel had passed up this area, concern over floods increased.

Storm Causes

all positions on both local and long distance boards.

Haschert said all available operators were on hand to operate the switchboards, but that the heavy traffic was causing some delay in handling calls.

Shortly after 7 p. m., a cable failure put some 600 telephones serving the Frederick Street and Bedford Road area out of service.

Within a short time, repair crews located the trouble—a cracked sheath had allowed moisture to get into the big cable—and reported service would be restored by morning.

Some individual lines which parted when struck by falling trees will be repaired today.

Sandbag Office

In Hagerstown, some 500 phones were reported out of order as a result of high winds.

Officials said service was generally good in Oakland, Frostburg, Kitzmiller and Accident.

But in Friendsville, telephone workers were sandbagging the central office as the Youghiogheny River went on a rampage.

All dial offices in the area were being manned in case trouble hit.

Emergency crews were on hand at the C & A Gas Company headquarters here, and officials said one crew had been dispatched to Bloomington, where a gas line had washed out.

Repair crews will be on hand to meet any emergency, officials said.

Basilio Is Victor

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 15 (AP)—Carmen Basilio, in command all the way, battered a disillusioned and bewildered Allie Gronik at will tonight to win a unanimous 10-round decision in their welterweight fight. Basilio weighed 151, Gronik, 151½.

Oldtown Road Quarry Ordered Sold At Auction

The Sensabaugh stone quarry, located about one and one-half miles east of the city limits along the Oldtown Road, will be sold at public auction Saturday, November 6, at 10 a. m., along with personal property, quarry equipment, trucks, bulldozers and other motor equipment.

This property covers approximately 170 acres in the vicinity of the historic Jane Frazier House.

G. C. Sensabaugh, Inc., has operated the stone quarry since 1946. For the past several years it has been virtually inoperative.

It is understood that the quarry has a history dating back more than 100 years. Some local historians say that some of the stone used in the construction of the old C & O Canal was taken from this quarry. The canal was opened to the public in 1850.

The auction will be conducted on the quarry site. Supplemental chattel mortgages held on the property have been assigned to George R. Hughes, local attorney for foreclosure, and the sale has been ordered.

Local Library Receives Book On Poetry Day

The Cumberland Free Public Library yesterday received a new book in observance of National Poetry Day.

The book, "An Editor Looks At Poetry," by Stanley A. Coblentz was given to the library by Mrs. Margielea Stonestreet See, who was Maryland chairman for the National Poetry Day committee.

In observance of National Poetry Day, Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian, arranged a special display featuring books of poetry. Included is Coblentz's book, described as a guide book to poetic technique by the editor of Wings, a quarterly of verse.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C.—The longest punt ever recorded by a University of North Carolina football player came in 1937 when Tom Burnette boomed a kick 85 yards against New York University.

Woman, Rescuer May Be Victims Of Flash Flood

Reading, Pa., Man Survives Ordeal

A Reading, Pa., woman and a Glade City, Pa., man who attempted to rescue her were reported swept away by the swollen waters of a small stream near Meyersdale, Pa., last night.

Her 24-year-old husband, identified by Meyersdale Community Hospital as Lester Chilton, survived the flood waters.

Chilton, who clung to a utility pole when the car in which he and his wife were riding was swept off the road, was admitted to the hospital last night in a state of shock.

X-rays were being taken to determine the extent of his injuries.

It was reported that Chilton and his wife were on their way to visit his aunt in Meyersdale when their car was marooned by rising waters at Glade City, on the outskirts of Meyersdale.

A rescue party, it was reported, threw a line to the trapped couple. As Mrs. Chilton was being pulled to safety, the line snapped and allowed her to be washed downstream.

One of the rescue party, tentatively identified as Edward Hostetler, of Glade City, leaped into the raging waters to rescue her and was swept away.

New Jersey Man Faces Old Charge

Edward Pavlisko, formerly of Newark, N.J., is scheduled for trial before Associate Judge George Henderson in Allegany County Circuit Court at 9:15 a.m. today on a 1948 charge of attempted robbery.

A criminal information was filed yesterday in court charging that Pavlisko attempted to rob Roscoe M. McElfish, an A&P store employe, on January 12, 1948. Six other New Jersey men were tried on similar charges in February, 1948.

Pavlisko was not caught here. Apprehended later on another charge he has been serving time in the New Jersey penitentiary. He was turned over yesterday to Deputy Sheriffs Edgar M. Lewis and Louis T. Helman upon his release from the penitentiary in New Jersey.

Members of the faculty were introduced by the principal, Miss Lulu M. Blonsky.

Tucker County Hard Hit By Raging Flood

Parsons And Other Towns Marooned

Tucker County, W.Va., felt the impact of continual rains and several towns were flooded yesterday as water from the Blackfork, Shavers Fork and Cheat River ran riot.

Late last night, about half the population in Parsons had been evacuated as three and four feet of muddy water swept through the streets. The town was without power and parts of the town and adjacent areas had no telephone communications.

Volunteer firemen and other emergency workers were hard pressed in their task of getting people out of their homes to higher ground Many residents in Parsons as elsewhere threw their homes open in a mass spontaneous evacuation program.

St. George, Hambleton, Holly Meadows and other county towns were marooned and many families were caught in the flood waters. At Porterwood the swirling flood washed out the area's main natural gas line, cutting off the supply of fuel for heat and cooking.

At Hendricks, 75 families were evacuated and US 219 near Parsons was inundated and blocked. Bridges in several areas were covered with water and impassable.

At Parsons, the Dodridge High School football team of West Union, there to play Parsons High School, was marooned. They were housed last night in the public shelter opened in Parsons Grade School. The football game was postponed indefinitely.

Parsons business people and residents not already hit by the flood waters were in imminent danger of having everything swept away. Water in Shaver Fork at the old pulp mill dike was coming over top of the dike at 11 p.m. and residents feared the dike could not hold. If the dike broke, Parsons would be literally swept off the top of the mountain.

At least two people experienced narrow escapes in the flood yesterday afternoon. While driving along the highway a quarter mile from Hendricks, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Bowman of Dry Fork were nearly drowned when water from

Johnstown Youths Held In Theft Of Cars

Two teenage youths who were arrested here early yesterday morning after being stopped for driving the wrong way on a one-way street are being held for Johnstown, Pa., authorities after questioning revealed they were driving a stolen car.

The two, both 16 years of age, admitted to having stolen two other cars in their 70-mile trip here and also to have broken into a garage near Central City, Pa., to steal a quantity of merchandise. In their possession was a television tube tester which they had kept after finding it in the first stolen car.

The youths were placed in custody by Officers George W. Furstenberg and George E. Pfeiffer as they were driving south on North Centre Street to Baltimore Street. They were taken to headquarters because of their young appearance and nature of the articles in the vehicle.

Detective Donald H. Smith, who questioned the boys, said one of them claimed the car was the property of his father, but that conflicting answers were given by the two on the articles in the vehicle.

The boys finally confessed to having stolen a car in Johnstown at about 11 p. m. Thursday abandoning it in Central City after it had developed fuel pump trouble and then breaking into a garage on the outskirts of the latter town.

Taken from the garage was a half-case of tonic, chewing tobacco, gum, candy, cigarettes and reflector tape for vehicles.

The teenagers then stole another car in Central City and drove to Bedford where they abandoned it and stole another vehicle.

Detective Smith notified Johnstown authorities early yesterday morning and was told that the car and tube tester had been reported stolen. Authorities there claimed the two youths were on three-year paroles for previous offenses. Bedford and Central City authorities were also notified of the car thiefs and breaking and entering.

Daily Bridge Lesson by Barclay

by Shepard Barclay

WRONG ON EVERY TURN

SOMETIMES a poor benighted fellow just can't do anything right, no matter how hard he tries. He may have several turns in the bidding, on each of which he must decide what to do. If he makes the correct choice even once, his pair makes out pretty well. But each time an alternative confronts him, he chooses the option that causes the most harm. Don't say you haven't been like that yourself. Everybody has. But, if you are a good player, it doesn't happen often.

North: ♠ J 7 4 ♥ K Q 10 9 6 2 ♦ 6 2 ♣ K 10
West: ♠ K 9 8 3 ♥ 3 ♦ K Q J 9 4 ♣ Q 7 3
East: ♠ A Q 10 6 2 ♥ A J 7 5 ♦ 8 5 ♣ 6 5
South: ♠ 5 ♥ 8 4 ♦ A 10 7 3 ♣ A J 9 8 4 2

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
3 ♦	Dbl.

When that double was left in, it was North's third error of the deal, the most costly of all. The opponents beat the doubled 3-Diamonds five tricks for a score of 900 points.

North's first mistake was in opening the bidding at all. With less than an average share of 10 by the 4-3-2-1 count in high cards, he could not make a sound bid. And he was not weak enough for a psychic based on certainty that the opponents had a vulnerable game.

His second faulty action was in not passing South's 2-Clubs.

The final slip was in not bidding over the double of 3-Diamonds. Knowing his partner's clubs were longer, he should have bid 4-Clubs or else 4-Hearts. Proper play by South could have limited the loss in 4-Clubs to down two, 500 points, and good play in 3-Hearts might have resulted at least that well, maybe better.

Your Week-End Question

Under what circumstances should you voluntarily raise your partner's major suit bid to a point short of game, leaving to him the decision of whether to go the rest of the way or pass?

Founding Of Lodge Marked By Jews

The two local Jewish congregations observed the 111th anniversary of the founding of the Benevolent Order of B'nai B'rith with services last night at the two synagogues.

The fraternal organization, founded in New York City in 1843, has lodges throughout the United States, Europe and Israel, local officials state.

The services at Beth Jacob Synagogue will be highlighted by a symposium to be delivered by Robert Goldfine, Harry Kauffman and Robert Kaplon, president of the Western Maryland Lodge of B'nai B'rith. Rabbi Joseph Schimelman will officiate at the services.

The services at B'er Chayim Temple were featured by a candlabra ritual by B'nai B'rith members. Rabbi Daniel Lowry delivered an address on the aims of the organization.

Daily Bridge Lesson — by Barclay

by Shepard Barclay

WRONG ON EVERY TURN

SOMETIMES a poor benighted fellow just can't do anything right, no matter how hard he tries. He may have several turns in the bidding, on each of which he must decide what to do. If he makes the correct choice even once, his pair makes out pretty well. But each time an alternative confronts him, he chooses the option that causes the most harm. Don't say you haven't been like that yourself. Everybody has. But, if you are a good player, it doesn't happen often.

When that double was left in, it was North's third error of the deal, the most costly of all. The opponents beat the doubled 3-Diamonds five tricks for a score of 900 points.

North's first mistake was in opening the bidding at all. With less than an average share of 10 by the 4-3-2-1 count in high cards, he could not make a sound bid. And he was not weak enough for a psychic based on certainty that the opponents had a vulnerable game.

His second faulty action was in not passing South's 2-Clubs.

The final slip was in not bidding over the double of 3-Diamonds. Knowing his partner's clubs were longer, he should have bid 4-Clubs or else 4-Hearts. Proper play by South could have limited the loss in 4-Clubs to down two, 500 points, and good play in 3-Hearts might have resulted at least that well, maybe better.

Your Week-End Question

Under what circumstances should you voluntarily raise your partner's major suit bid to a point short of game, leaving to him the decision of whether to go the rest of the way or pass?

Founding Of Lodge Marked By Jews

The two local Jewish congregations observed the 111th anniversary of the founding of the Benevolent Order of B'nai B'rith with services last night at the two synagogues.

The fraternal organization, founded in New York City in 1843, has lodges throughout the United States, Europe and Israel, local officials state.

The services at Beth Jacob Synagogue will be highlighted by a symposium to be delivered by Robert Goldfine, Harry Kauffman and Robert Kaplon, president of the Western Maryland Lodge of B'nai B'rith. Rabbi Joseph Schimelman will officiate at the services.

The services at B'er Chayim Temple were featured by a candlabra ritual by B'nai B'rith members. Rabbi Daniel Lowry delivered an address on the aims of the organization.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. Texie Ann Teter, who passed away 15 years ago today, Oct. 16, 1939.
No one knows how much we miss you,
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered since we lost you,
Life has never been the same.
Sweetly, tender, fond and true,
There's never a day dear wife and Mother,
That we do not think of you.
Sadly missed by Husband, Children and Grandchildren.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. Texie Ann Teter, who passed away 15 years ago today, Oct. 16, 1939.
No one knows how much we miss you,
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered since we lost you,
Life has never been the same.
Sweetly, tender, fond and true,
There's never a day dear wife and Mother,
That we do not think of you.
Sadly missed by Husband, Children and Grandchildren.

Stock Market Slips Despite Strength Of The Railroads

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)— The stock market slipped a little today, but unusual strength was displayed by the railroads.

Carrier shares persisted in their higher prices throughout the session which was marked at times by selling pressure.

Ahead also were the aircrafts, airlines, and many individual issues scattered throughout the list.

Oils were depressed as were most chemicals and some of the motion pictures, coppers, steels, motors, and utilities.

Changes in either direction usually were bounded by 2 points. Most were small.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost only 10 cents at $134.60. It was off $1.40 yesterday. Volume came to 2,250,000 shares. That compares with 2,540,000 shares traded yesterday.

Royal Dutch Petroleum hit the top of the most active list today up ½ at 67½ on 74,100 shares.

It was followed by Baltimore & Ohio up 1¾ at 27⅞, Lehigh Coal & Navigation up ½ at 10⅜, General Electric off ⅛ at 41⅞, and Houston Light & Power off ⅝ at 36⅞ on volume of 24,900 shares including one block of 22,400 shares at 36½.

Western Maryland, tenth most active issue, gained 3⅛ at 27⅛ after the Interstate Commerce Commission approved a capital readjustment program.

Among other stocks advancing with net gains were New York Central up ½, Southern Railway 1⅝, Southern Pacific ⅞, Allied Chemical 1⅜, U. S. Steel ⅜, Chrysler ⅜, Douglas Aircraft ⅞, Decca Records ⅞, and American Airlines ¼.

Lower were Standard Oil (NJ) off ⅝, Superior Oil of California off ⅛&¾ at 715, paramount ⅝, American Telphone ⅛, Phelps Dodge 1, American Cyanamid ⅞, and National Distillers ¼.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Stock Market Slips Despite Strength Of The Railroads

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)— The stock market slipped a little today, but unusual strength was displayed by the railroads.

Carrier shares persisted in their higher prices throughout the session which was marked at times by selling pressure.

Ahead also were the aircrafts, airlines, and many individual issues scattered throughout the list.

Oils were depressed as were most chemicals and some of the motion pictures, coppers, steels, motors, and utilities.

Changes in either direction usually were bounded by 2 points. Most were small.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost only 10 cents at $134.60. It was off $1.40 yesterday. Volume came to 2,250,000 shares. That compares with 2,540,000 shares traded yesterday.

Royal Dutch Petroleum hit the top of the most active list today up ½ at 67½ on 74,100 shares.

It was followed by Baltimore & Ohio up 1¾ at 27⅞, Lehigh Coal & Navigation up ½ at 10⅜, General Electric off ⅛ at 41⅞, and Houston Light & Power off ⅝ at 36⅞ on volume of 24,900 shares including one block of 22,400 shares at 36½.

Western Maryland, tenth most active issue, gained 3⅛ at 27⅛ after the Interstate Commerce Commission approved a capital readjustment program.

Among other stocks advancing with net gains were New York Central up ½, Southern Railway 1⅜, Southern Pacific ⅞, Allied Chemical 1⅜, U. S. Steel ⅜, Chrysler ⅜, Douglas Aircraft ⅞, Decca Records ⅞, and American Airlines ¼.

Lower were Standard Oil (NJ) off ⅝, Superior Oil of California off ⅛&¾ at 715, paramount ⅝, American Telephone ⅛, Phelps Dodge 1, American Cyanamid ⅞, and National Distillers ¼.

Floods, High Winds Sweep Area

Several Towns Are Inundated

Potomac Rises At Cumberland

Rivers and streams in the Tri-State area went wild yesterday and last night, flooding a dozen towns and causing at least two probable drownings.

The threat of a serious flood at Cumberland seemed to have diminished somewhat by 1:30 a. m., however, as Wills Creek passed its crest and began to fall.

The Potomac River, however, was still on its way up. The river, which stood at just a little over the eight-foot flood stage at Blue Bridge at 1 a. m., was expected to reach a somewhat higher crest by 5 a. m.

Some water spilled onto Paca Street, and Wills Creek overflowed onto North Mechanic Street above Valley Street and near the B&O Railroad viaduct above Market Street.

In general, however, the creek was falling. City officials were hoping that by the time the river hit its crest the creek would have dropped enough that there would be no major backing-up in the downtown area.

2 Missing At Meyersdale

Parts of West Side and South End, however, appeared to be in for some high water. The Weather Bureau predicted a 24-foot crest at Wiley Ford Bridge for 5 a. m. today. The water was at 18.8 feet early today, just about flood stage.

At Meyersdale, Pa., a woman and a man who had tried to save her from drowning were missing and presumed dead. (Story on Page 9).

Elsewhere in the area, flood waters swept away bridges, roads, railway tracks, utility poles and gardens. Homes were flooded in a score of places, and several towns were evacuated or completely cut off by floods.

Several families in Locust Grove, Wiley Ford and Ridgeley, and at least one West Side family were evacuated. Sixteen people from Locust Grove were taken to a shelter which had been rigged up for them at LaVale Fire Hall.

The abnormal rainfall was so general in this area that it became difficult to pin point any area as the most vitally hurt. However, appeals came to Cumberland from several area communities and requests were made for aid after the waters subside.

Probably hit as hard as any place along the Potomac River was Kitzmiller. This little Garrett County mining town, once a thriving community of some 3,000 residents, was literally washed away in 1924 and again in 1936.

Yesterday, Kitzmiller was hit again, and most of its population of 700 took to the hills.

About three hours later, at 6 (Continued on Page 9, Col. 3)

Swollen Streams Halt Traffic On South Branch

Close Watch Kept As Crest Nears

The South Branch of the Potomac River was still swollen with flood waters late last night, but authorities said the situation was "looking better."

State Trooper D. E. Adams reported from Petersburg that the stream had risen about five inches between 10 and 11 p. m. and was still rising.

But he said the stream was falling in Franklin, W. Va., and that it was still five feet short of flood stage at Petersburg.

West Virginia State Police at the Romney barracks reported they had checked several rumors of flood waters in the South Branch but that all were unfounded.

The steady rain, still falling last night, brought high waters which closed highways in several spots.

U. S. Route 50 traffic was halted both east and west of Romney early last evening as waters from the Little Capon River flooded the Gap Bridge and Frenchburg areas.

On Route 28, waters from Patersons Creek overflowed upon the highway at Fort Ashby, and in Pendleton County, waters from the South Branch was running over the road near Mouth of Seneca.

Officials said the high waters occurred during heavy Friday evening traffic conditions, causing considerable congestion near the water blocks.

Passengers from a westbound Greyhound bus stranded about five miles from Romney were rescued by Volunteer firemen from that town.

From Petersburg, State Police reported Route 28 was blocked south of Moorefield and Route 220 near the Pendleton County line.

The South Branch was reported in good shape at 8 p. m., and State Police said the stream was dropping at that time.

Officials said they were hoping the local waters would be down by the time the crest of the mountain waters hit.

Virginian Seeks $25,000 Damages

Ellsworth F. Williams of Alexandria, Va., yesterday filed a suit for $25,000 damages in Allegany County Circuit Court.

The suit, filed for the Virginian by Attorney Gorman E. Getty, named Paul R. Williams of Barton as defendant.

The plaintiff asserts that he was injured June 6, 1953, on the Knobley Mountain Cut-Off between U.S. 220 and U.S. 50 in Mineral County, W. Va., when the defendant's car, in which he was a passenger, left the highway.

Ellsworth Williams said the defendant's car ran off the highway, down an embankment and into a creek where it turned over several times. The plaintiff said he sustained a fracture of the sixth cervical vertabrae, multiple lacerations, contusions and abrasions and was required to wear a cervical brace for eight months and a collar brace for several months after that.

Detroit Resident Killed In Crash On Pa. Turnpike

Yesterday's heavy rainstorm was responsible for the fatal traffic accident on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, according to State Police at Bedford.

The victim was Lucille Dozier, of Detroit, Mich., who died instantly of a fractured skull.

The car being driven by Walter Dozier, Detroit, was traveling west on the turnpike, near Bennett Township, when the driver lost control on the slippery road and crossed the medial strip, crashing head-on into the car being driven by George F. Mills, of Massilon, Ohio. The accident occurred at 1:45 p. m.

Dozier is in Chambersburg, Hospital, where he is in serious condition, while Mills was admitted to the same hospital in critical condition.

State Trooper John Nodich investigated.

Storm Causes Some Damage To Utilities

Cable Failure Puts 600 Telephones Out In Cumberland

Lashing rain and high winds which hit Western Maryland yesterday caused scattered disruptions in telephone and power service, but alert line crews were repairing the damage about as fast as it occurred.

All utility companies made elaborate preparations for the storm, and were keeping repair crews on a standby basis, ready to meet any emergency.

Scattered trouble was reported by the Potomac Edison Company early last night as heavy rain and high winds affected distribution lines in several sections of the Cumberland area.

Officials said the interruptions to service were brief and that Cumberland itself was fortunate during the early stages of the storm.

To "See It Through"

All available line crews were on hand and company officials said the men would remain on duty and "see it through."

No service interruption was reported in Cumberland in early evening, but the company said there was some damage from wind toppled trees, especially on Washington Street.

Potomac Edison Company officials said crews were sent to the Beans Cove Area and to McMullen Highway after distribution lines went down.

The McMullen Highway line trouble, which affected Cresaptown and a section south of the town for about 30 minutes, had been repaired by early evening.

Another repair crew reported they had just about completed work on the Beans Cove trouble.

Most of the power failures resulted from falling trees, officials said, adding that transmission lines were not affected.

Line crews were being kept on the alert until all danger of power interruption was over.

Take Double Jolt

Early last evening, C. Walter Haschert Jr., manager, reported telephone service was in fairly good shape here in spite of the wind and rain.

Youth Nabbed For Spreading Flood Alarm

An 18-year-old North Mechanic Street youth was lodged in City Jail and held for investigation last night, allegedly after informing Mechanic Street residents that Wills Creek would be "flooded in 20 minutes." He was apprehended at 8:30 p. m.

Armed with a flashlight and armband, with the letters "CS" printed in lipstick, Charles W. Johnson, of 162 North Mechanic Street, reportedly went from door to door urging residents to evacuate.

Patrolman Harry Iser nabbed the youth and escorted him to the city lockup.

Grahamtown Flash Flood

Angry flood waters from Georges Creek spread across the highway at Grahamtown near Frostburg and reach almost to the window sills at the home of Mrs. Della Offman. Cellars in all houses along the creek were flooded, and at least one house had to be evacuated. State Route 36 was closed to traffic for several hours, but was open later in the evening. Flash floods were general throughout the Tri-State area yesterday afternoon and last night and several towns were hard hit by the storm.

Flood Waters Force Closing Of Paper Mill

Other Industries Remain On Alert

The big West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company mill at Luke was shut down by flood waters last night and other area industries prepared for the worst as rivers and streams continued to rise.

A number of cellars at the Luke plant were flooded and trouble at the filter plant reportedly caused by leaves and debris forced the company to cut off the power at the plant. Water from the Potomac was seeping into the mill pond and to the rear of the main office.

However water was not reported on the community streets at 10 p.m.

Employes of Allegany Ballistics Laboratory were excused from work yesterday at 3 p.m. and will not report back to work until Monday morning.

However, according to O. B. Case, plant manager, some maintenance crews are standing by, should power lines go down or exceptional flooding of the laboratory occur.

The regular crew of plant guards was on duty. Pumps have been readied, Case added, in case the river waters threaten the plant. He pointed out that if the heavy rains which continued throughout the afternoon and evening yesterday did not let up, the situation in the laboratory area could be serious.

At the Amcelle plant, according to a spokesman, regular emergency crews would be alerted and called to duty in the event the Potomac River went on a rampage in that area.

The spokesman said last night about 8 o'clock that officials were (Continued on Page 9, Col. 8)

Area's Disaster Agencies Alert All Key Personnel

Key personnel of Allegany County's disaster agencies kept a close watch last night to prepare for any emergency which might result from the near visit of Hurricane Hazel.

William G. Barger, Allegany County CD director, said all sections of that organization had reported they were ready to swing into action at any time.

He said J. V. Gaffney, CD communications officer, reported radio hams of the area had been reporting for duty since early morning.

The Mountain Radio Club, he added, was manning both its regular and emergency equipment and preparing to transmit urgent messages in case telephone and telegraph lines went out of service.

The Allegany County Chapter of the American Red Cross alerted all of its key personnel and arranged to set up emergency shelters in case they were needed.

The Maryland National Guard had a service officer on duty so men could be mobilized for emergency disaster duty if needed.

Beall Labels Canal Reports 'Political Yarn'

No Signs Posted, Senator Asserts

Senator J. Glenn Beall said yesterday that reports stating that Maryland hunters and sportsmen have been banned from crossing the C&O Canal property are "completely untrue," adding that the reports are "a pernicious political yarn without truth or substance."

Sportsmen in Washington County said Wednesday that they would hold a mass meeting October 20 to protest the posting of "no trespassing" signs along the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal right-of-way in that county.

"Reports that Maryland hunters and sportsmen have been banned from crossing the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal property are completely untrue," Senator Beall said.

"The Department of Interior promptly told me that they have taken no such action and that the rules remain the same as they always have — hunters and sportsmen have free access to the canal property and the department only requests that they keep their guns unloaded while on federal property.

"The department has advised me that no arrests have been made, and that its agents have been directed to not interfere with the activities of sportsmen and not to challenge their rights to carry game, guns or to have dogs with them.

"Further the Department of Interior informed me that it has not posted any new signs against trespassing.

"This prompt and complete denial shows these false reports to be a pernicious political yarn without truth or substance.

"Dr. William B. Holton, president of the Maryland Izaac Walton League, has also been in touch with officials of the Interior Department and they advised him as they advised me — that the department has made no changes in its rules, and that hunters will not be interferred with, unless an irresponsible individual conducts himself in such a way as to damage property or to endanger the lives of others.

"Therefore, there is no reason for any sporting organization or conservation group to call an indignation meeting because they have nothing to be indignant about.

"As the sponsor of the C&O Canal project I am quite familiar with the manufactured opportunities the opponents have used to arouse hostility to the project, and to make political capital out of a development which is purely in the best interest of all the people in the Sixth District, the state of Maryland and the nation.

"The opponents are now spreading false reports in hopes of making the project an issue in the current election campaign. Responsible sportsmen, responsible conservationists, and all citizens who take the trouble to become informed, will seek out the truth and not be stampeded by those who wish to spread disunity and dissension among the people of the Sixth District.

"The Department of Interior has denied the reports which have been circulated. Those guilty of spreading the reports have offered no substantiating evidence.

"Let the accusers come forward with proof that the Department of Interior has made any changes in its management of that property, or to produce any responsible hunter whose activities have been prohibited," Beall challenged.

Rails, Bus Lines Hit By Storm

B&O Pittsburgh Division Closed By Land Slides

Railroads and bus lines were hard-hit yesterday as torrential rains caused land slides along the railroads and overflowing rivers and streams closed highways to normal travel.

The Pittsburgh Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad system was "out of service" last night.

However, the Cumberland Division was open, according to A. W. Conley, division superintendent, who said some minor slides were reported along the route. Neither passenger nor freight service was held up along the Cumberland Division, Conley pointed out.

Trains Detoured

He said passenger service from Cumberland to Pittsburgh was being detoured over the Cumberland Division by way of Grafton, Clarksburg and Wheeling into the Steel City.

Track crews were out last night along the Pittsburgh Division in an effort to clear at least one track for freight service on that division.

The heaviest slides occurred near Connellsville, Rockwood, Salisbury Junction and Keystone along the Pittsburgh Division, Conley added.

In Cumberland, maintenance crews of the Baltimore and Ohio shops and the Bolt and Forge were on the alert in the event high water might overflow local rivers and creeks.

A Cumberland-bound Western Maryland Railway freight train was struck by a land slide at the Indigo Tunnel just west of Hancock, but was not derailed, about 5:30 p. m. yesterday.

The 25 tons of earth and rock, loosened by the heavy rains, stopped the train but no one was hurt, according to word received at the dispatcher's office in Cumberland. Officials here had no idea how long it would take to dig the train out.

There is only one track at that point on the railroad so that all train movement was stopped. Another westbound train was waiting east of the tunnel until the other train could be extricated from the rubble.

Trapped By Slides

Joseph M. Miller, superintendent of the Elkins Division of the Western Maryland, reported last night that two other freight trains were trapped by slides and water over the tracks in the area of Rockwood in Somerset County, Pa. Neither train was damaged.

Two streams in the area not far from Elkins, W. Va., were out of their banks and over the Western Maryland tracks, stopping movement of trains there.

The Blackwater River was over the tracks at Hendricks in Tucker County. At Montrose in Randolph County Leading Creek was out of banks and flooding the tracks.

Because of the combination of slides and high water, virtually all traffic on the Western Maryland had ceased last night, according to the division superintendent. He was planning to wait until daylight when a more accurate check of the damage could be made.

The train struck by the slide had 79 cars, 30 of them loaded. Stymied at Rockwood was a 73-car eastbound freight and a 22-car westbound train.

Buses Affected

Blue Ridge bus service in and out of Cumberland was affected by the heavy rains and some of the buses were running an hour late.

Along Route 40, the road at Piney Grove, east of Town Hill was closed to vehicular traffic last night and the regular scheduled 8 p. m. bus to Hagerstown did not leave here until about 9 p. m.

Eastbound buses from Pittsburgh by way of Uniontown along Route 40 were running an hour late, according to a spokesman at the local bus station. The 7:35 p. m. bus yesterday arrived from Pittsburgh at 8:30 p. m.

A large amount of water was reported in the Uniontown area and along the Castleman River near Grantsville.

An Osgood bus which left the Cumberland Terminal at 5:30 p. m. bound for Oakland could get no farther than Blane, W. Va., where the flood waters of the Potomac River forced the driver to stop and return to Cumberland.

Passengers Stranded

The Romney Volunteer Fire Company went to The Gap, about five miles east of that Hampshire County community, early last evening to rescue some 40 passengers of a stranded Greyhound bus.

West Virginia State Police said the Clarksburg-bound bus was stopped by water from the Little Capon River which flooded low spots on U. S. Route 50 there and on the east side of Romney.

State Police said the heavy Friday afternoon traffic was stopped at both points.

Route 28 traffic was also halted at Fort Ashby and at the Mouth of Seneca.

Running For Cover

Floods, High Winds Sweep Area

Several Towns Are Inundated

Potomac Rises At Cumberland

Rivers and streams in the Tri-State area went wild yesterday and last night, flooding a dozen towns and causing at least two probable drownings.

The threat of a serious flood at Cumberland seemed to have diminished somewhat by 1:30 a. m., however, as Wills Creek passed its crest and began to fall.

The Potomac River, however, was still on its way up. The river, which stood at just a little over the eight-foot flood stage at Blue Bridge at 1 a. m., was expected to reach a somewhat higher crest by 5 a. m.

Some water spilled onto Paca Street, and Wills Creek overflowed onto North Mechanic Street above Valley Street and near the B&O Railroad viaduct above Market Street.

In general, however, the creek was falling. City officials were hoping that by the time the river hit its crest the creek would have dropped enough that there would be no major backing-up in the downtown area.

2 Missing At Meyersdale

Parts of West Side and South End, however, appeared to be in for some high water. The Weather Bureau predicted a 24-foot crest at Wiley Ford Bridge for 5 a. m. today. The water was at 18.8 feet early today, just about flood stage.

At Meyersdale, Pa., a woman and a man who had tried to save her from drowning were missing and presumed dead. (Story on Page 9).

Elsewhere in the area, flood waters swept away bridges, roads, railway tracks, utility poles and gardens. Homes were flooded in a score of places, and several towns were evacuated or completely cut off by floods.

Several families in Locust Grove, Wiley Ford and Ridgeley, and at least one West Side family were evacuated. Sixteen people from Locust Grove were taken to a shelter which had been rigged up for them at LaVale Fire Hall.

The abnormal rainfall was so general in this area that it became difficult to pin point any area as the most vitally hurt. However, appeals came to Cumberland from several area communities and requests were made for aid after the waters subside.

Probably hit as hard as any place along the Potomac River was Kitzmiller. This little Garrett County mining town, once a thriving community of some 3,000 residents, was literally washed away in 1924 and again in 1936.

Yesterday, Kitzmiller was hit again, and most of its population of 700 took to the hills.

Swollen Streams Halt Traffic On South Branch

Close Watch Kept As Crest Nears

The South Branch of the Potomac River was still swollen with flood waters late last night, but authorities said the situation was "looking better."

State Trooper D. E. Adams reported from Petersburg that the stream had risen about five inches between 10 and 11 p. m. and was still rising.

But he said the stream was falling in Franklin, W. Va., and that it was still five feet short of flood stage at Petersburg.

West Virginia State Police at the Romney barracks reported they had checked several rumors of flood waters in the South Branch but that all were unfounded.

The steady rain, still falling last night, brought high waters which closed highways in several spots.

U. S. Route 50 traffic was halted both east and west of Romney early last evening as waters from the Little Capon River flooded the Gap Bridge and Frenchburg areas.

On Route 28, waters from Pattersons Creek overflowed upon the highway at Fort Ashby, and in Pendleton County, waters from the South Branch was running over the road near Mouth of Seneca.

Officials said the high waters occurred during heavy Friday evening traffic conditions, causing considerable congestion near the water blocks.

Passengers from a westbound Greyhound bus stranded about five miles from Romney were rescued by Volunteer firemen from that town.

From Petersburg, State Police reported Route 28 was blocked south of Moorefield and Route 220 near the Pendleton County line.

The South Branch was reported in good shape at 8 p. m., and State Police said the stream was dropping at that time.

Officials said they were hoping the local waters would be down by the time the crest of the mountain waters hit.

Virginian Seeks $25,000 Damages

Ellsworth F. Williams of Alexandria, Va., yesterday filed a suit for $25,000 damages in Allegany County Circuit Court.

The suit, filed for the Virginian by Attorney Gorman E. Getty, named Paul R. Williams of Barton as defendant.

The plaintiff asserts that he was injured June 6, 1953, on the Knobley Mountain Cut-Off between U.S. 220 and U.S. 50 in Mineral County, W. Va., when the defendant's car, in which he was a passenger, left the highway.

Ellsworth Williams said the defendant's car ran off the highway, down an embankment and into a creek where it turned over several times. The plaintiff said he sustained a fracture of the sixth cervical vertabrae, multiple lacerations, contusions and abrasions and was required to wear a cervical brace for eight months and a collar brace for several months after that.

Detroit Resident Killed In Crash On Pa. Turnpike

Yesterday's heavy rainstorm was responsible for the fatal traffic accident on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, according to State Police at Bedford.

The victim was Lucille Dozier, of Detroit, Mich., who died instantly of a fractured skull.

The car being driven by Walter Dozier, Detroit, was traveling west on the turnpike, near Bennett Township, when the driver lost control on the slippery road and crossed the medial strip, crashing head-on into the car being driven by George F. Mills, of Massilon, Ohio. The accident occurred at 1:45 p. m.

Dozier is in Chambersburg, Hospital, where he is in serious condition, while Mills was admitted to the same hospital in critical condition.

Youth Nabbed For Spreading Flood Alarm

An 18-year-old North Mechanic Street youth was lodged in City Jail and held for investigation last night, allegedly after informing Mechanic Street residents that Wills Creek would be "flooded in 20 minutes." He was apprehended at 8:30 p. m.

Armed with a flashlight and armband, with the letters "CS" printed in lipstick, Charles W. Johnson, of 162 North Mechanic Street, reportedly went from door to door urging residents to evacuate.

Patrolman Harry Iser nabbed the youth and escorted him to the city lockup.

Cable Failure Puts 600 Telephones Out In Cumberland

Lashing rain and high winds which hit Western Maryland yesterday caused scattered disruptions in telephone and power service, but alert line crews were repairing the damage about as fast as it occurred.

All utility companies made elaborate preparations for the storm, and were keeping repair crews on a standby basis, ready to meet any emergency.

Scattered trouble was reported by the Potomac Edison Company early last night as heavy rain and high winds affected distribution lines in several sections of the Cumberland area.

Officials said the interruptions to service were brief and that Cumberland itself was fortunate during the early stages of the storm.

To "See It Through"

All available line crews were on hand and company officials said the men would remain on duty and "see it through."

No service interruption was reported in Cumberland in early evening, but the company said there was some damage from wind toppled trees, especially on Washington Street.

Potomac Edison Company officials said crews were sent to the Beans Cove Area and to McMullen Highway after distribution lines went down.

The McMullen Highway line trouble, which affected Cresaptown and a section south of the town for about 30 minutes, had been repaired by early evening.

Another repair crew reported they had just about completed work on the Beans Cove trouble.

Most of the power failures resulted from falling trees, officials said, adding that transmission lines were not affected.

Line crews were being kept on the alert until all danger of power interruption was over.

Take Double Jolt

Telephone crews had to withstand a double jolt from the storm.

Early last evening, C. Walter Haschert Jr., manager, reported telephone service was in fairly good shape here in spite of the wind and rain.

Grahamtown Flash Flood

Angry flood waters from Georges Creek spread across the highway at Grahamtown near Frostburg and reach almost to the window sills at the home of Mrs. Della Offman. Cellars in all houses along the creek were flooded, and at least one house had to be evacuated. State Route 36 was closed to traffic for several hours, but was open later in the evening. Flash floods were general throughout the Tri-State area yesterday afternoon and last night and several towns were hard hit by the storm.

Flood Waters Force Closing Of Paper Mill

Other Industries Remain On Alert

The big West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company mill at Luke was shut down by flood waters last night and other area industries prepared for the worst as rivers and streams continued to rise.

A number of cellars at the Luke plant were flooded and trouble at the filter plant reportedly caused by leaves and debris forced the company to cut off the power at the plant. Water from the Potomac was seeping into the mill pond and to the rear of the main office.

However water was not reported on the community streets at 10 p.m.

Employes of Allegany Ballistics Laboratory were excused from work yesterday at 3 p.m. and will not report back to work until Monday morning.

However, according to O. B. Case, plant manager, some maintenance crews are standing by, should power lines go down or exceptional flooding of the laboratory occur.

The regular crew of plant guards was on duty. Pumps have been readied, Case added, in case the river waters threaten the plant. He pointed out that if the heavy rains which continued throughout the afternoon and evening yesterday did not let up, the situation in the laboratory area could be serious.

At the Amcelle plant, according to a spokesman, regular emergency crews would be alerted and called to duty in the event the Potomac River went on a rampage in that area.

The spokesman said last night about 8 o'clock that officials were (Continued on Page 9, Col. 8)

Area's Disaster Agencies Alert All Key Personnel

Key personnel of Allegany County's disaster agencies kept a close watch last night to prepare for any emergency which might result from the near visit of Hurricane Hazel.

William G. Barger, Allegany County CD director, said all sections of that organization had reported they were ready to swing into action at any time.

He said J. V. Gaffney, CD communications officer, reported radio hams of the area had been reporting for duty since early morning.

The Mountain Radio Club, he added, was manning both its regular and emergency equipment and preparing to transmit urgent messages in case telephone and telegraph lines went out of service.

The Allegany County Chapter of the American Red Cross alerted all of its key personnel and arranged to set up emergency shelters in case they were needed.

The Maryland National Guard had a service officer on duty so men could be mobilized for emergency disaster duty if needed.

Beall Labels Canal Reports 'Political Yarn'

No Signs Posted, Senator Asserts

Senator J. Glenn Beall said yesterday that reports stating that Maryland hunters and sportsmen have been banned from crossing the C&O Canal property are "completely untrue," adding that the reports are "a pernicious political yarn without truth or substance."

Sportsmen in Washington County said Wednesday that they would hold a mass meeting October 20 to protest the posting of "no trespassing" signs along the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal right-of-way in that county.

"Reports that Maryland hunters and sportsmen have been banned from crossing the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal property are completely untrue," Senator Beall said.

"The Department of Interior promptly told me that they have taken no such action and that the rules remain the same as they always have — hunters and sportsmen have free access to the canal property and the department only requests that they keep their guns unloaded while on federal property.

"The department has advised me that no arrests have been made, and that its agents have been directed to not interfere with the activities of sportsmen and not to challenge their rights to carry game, guns or to have dogs with them.

"Further the Department of Interior informed me that it has not posted any new signs against trespassing.

"This prompt and complete denial shows these false reports to be a pernicious political yarn without truth or substance.

"Dr. William B. Holton, president of the Maryland Izaac Walton League, has also been in touch with officials of the Interior Department and they advised him as they advised me — that the department has made no changes in its rules, and that hunters will not be interferred with, unless an irresponsible individual conducts himself in such a way as to damage property or to endanger the lives of others.

"Therefore, there is no reason for any sporting organization or conservation group to call an indignation meeting because they have nothing to be indignant about.

"As the sponsor of the C&O Canal project I am quite familiar with the manufactured opportunities the opponents have used to arouse hostility to the project, and to make political capital out of a development which is purely in the best interest of all the people in the Sixth District, the state of Maryland and the nation.

"The opponents are now spreading false reports in hopes of making the project an issue in the current election campaign. Responsible sportsmen, responsible conservationists, and all citizens who take the trouble to become informed, will seek out the truth and not be stampeded by those who wish to spread disunity and dissension among the people of the Sixth District.

"The Department of Interior has denied the reports which have been circulated. Those guilty of spreading the reports have offered no substantiating evidence.

"Let the accusers come forward with proof that the Department of Interior has made any changes in its management of that property, or to produce any responsible hunter whose activities have been prohibited," Beall challenged.

Rails, Bus Lines Hit By Storm

B&O Pittsburgh Division Closed By Land Slides

Railroads and bus lines were hard-hit yesterday as torrential rains caused land slides along the railroads and overflowing rivers and streams closed highways to normal travel.

The Pittsburgh Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad system was "out of service" last night.

However, the Cumberland Division was open, according to A. W. Conley, division superintendent, who said some minor slides were reported along the route. Neither passenger nor freight service was held up along the Cumberland Division, Conley pointed out.

Trains Detoured

He said passenger service from Cumberland to Pittsburgh was being detoured over the Cumberland Division by way of Grafton, Clarksburg and Wheeling into the Steel City.

Track crews were out last night along the Pittsburgh Division in an effort to clear at least one track for freight service on that division.

The heaviest slides occurred near Connellsville, Rockwood, Salisbury Junction and Keystone along the Pittsburgh Division, Conley added.

In Cumberland, maintenance crews of the Baltimore and Ohio shops and the Bolt and Forge were on the alert in the event high water might overflow local rivers and creeks.

A Cumberland-bound Western Maryland Railway freight train was struck by a land slide at the Indigo Tunnel just west of Hancock, but was not derailed, about 5:30 p. m. yesterday.

The 25 tons of earth and rock, loosened by the heavy rains, stopped the train but no one was hurt, according to word received at the dispatcher's office in Cumberland. Officials here had no idea how long it would take to dig the train out.

There is only one track at that point on the railroad so that all train movement was stopped. Another westbound train was waiting east of the tunnel until the other train could be extricated from the rubble.

Trapped By Slides

Joseph M. Miller, superintendent of the Elkins Division of the Western Maryland, reported last night that two other freight trains were trapped by slides and water over the tracks in the area of Rockwood in Somerset County, Pa. Neither train was damaged.

Two streams in the area not far from Elkins, W. Va., were out of their banks and over the Western Maryland tracks, stopping movement of trains there.

The Blackwater River was over the tracks at Hendricks in Tucker County. At Montrose in Randolph County Leading Creek was out of banks and flooding the tracks.

Because of the combination of slides and high water, virtually all traffic on the Western Maryland had ceased last night, according to the division superintendent. He was planning to wait until daylight when a more accurate check of the damage could be made.

The train struck by the slide had 79 cars, 30 of them loaded. Stymied at Rockwood was a 73-car eastbound freight and a 22-car westbound train.
